ROOSEVELT IN PEACE PLEA TO HITLER, BENES

Urges Germany, Czechoslovakia to Continue Negotiations And Avert War.

CABLED AT MIDNIGHT

Message Says U. S. Not Involved In Political Entanglements or Mesh of Hatred.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (AP)—Secretary of State Hull extended today the scope of President Roosevelt's appeal for world peace to include Poland and Hungary.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Roosevelt decided today to hold a special cabinet meeting tomorrow to consider the crisis in Europe. White House aides said the cabinet session had been moved up from Friday to Tuesday because of conditions abroad.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt, speaking in the name of 130,000,000 Americans, appealed today to Adolf Hitler, the German fuehrer, and President Benes of Czechoslovakia to keep the peace.

His message dispatched dramatically in the early morning hours directly to Hitler and Benes and through Secretary of State Hull to Premiers Chamberlain of Great Britain and Deladier of France, earnestly asked them "not to break off negotiations looking to a peaceful, fair and constructive settlement of the questions at issue."

He told them war's consequences were "incalculable," that millions of men, women and children would lose their lives, the economic system of every country involved was "certain to be shattered" and their social structure "may well be completely wrecked."

Carefully Prepared.

The president and Secretary Hull spent most of Sunday working on the message they felt could not be held up any longer. Well after midnight, correspondents, American and foreign, were called to the state department and handed copies of the telegram.

The message thus was so timed as to be received by Hitler, Benes, Chamberlain and Daladier when they rose this morning to look on a war-threatened Europe.

Telling them that "the fabric of peace on the continent of Europe, if not throughout the rest of the world, is in immediate danger," the president declared:

"It is my conviction that all people under the threat of war today pray that peace may be made before, rather than after, war."

Mr. Roosevelt carefully stated that "the United States has no political entanglements" and "is caught in no mesh of hatred."

He was believed thereby to be claiming for this country the privilege of appealing for peace because it had not declared for one side or the other.

None Can Escape.

"The supreme desire of the American people," he said, "is to live in peace. But in event of a general war they face the fact that no nation can escape some measure of the consequences of such a world catastrophe."

Mr. Roosevelt also called to the attention of the four European leaders the fact their nations are signatories to the Kellogg-Briand pact outlawing war and have treaties of arbitration and conciliation for settlement of difficulties.

"Whatever may be the differences in the controversies at issue," he told them, "and however difficult of pacific settlement they may be, I am persuaded that there is no problem so difficult or so pressing for solution that it can not be justly solved by the resort to reason rather than by the resort to force."

Flood and Hurricane Put Terrifying Climax On Vacation of Mansfielders, Marooned In Mountains

Try and Include 'Em In Your Next Holiday, It's Fun (?), Jane Says.

EDITOR'S NOTE—Jane Williams, News-Journal staff writer, and her husband and Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. McKinley, former Mansfielders, went on a motor tour of Gaspe two weeks ago. Last Wednesday, heading homeward, they were caught in the midst of the New England hurricane. Here's her story of the party's experience.

By JANE WILLIAMS

The next time you plan a vacation try to include a hurricane and a flood — preferably record-breaking ones — there's nothing like them for ending a vacation with a flourish.

Back home and safe at the old desk, it seems an interesting experience in retrospect, but last Wednesday when we were trapped in the White mountains of New Hampshire by flood waters, and Wednesday night when a 100-mile an hour hurricane rocked the mountain hotel in which we had sought refuge, it was neither interesting nor thrilling. It was just plain terrifying.

Before the one telephone line which connected the lodge with the state patrol office went out, I sent a telegram to the editor of The News-Journal which said: "We're marooned at Twin Mountains, N. H. Flood waters rising, hurricane raging; Don't know when we can get out of here." The message, filed last Wednesday night, was delivered here Sunday morning. We got home before the message, by a few hours.

It started to rain last Monday night after we had left the Matapedia valley of the Gaspe peninsula. It rained continuously from then on until Thursday morning. We crossed the Quebec-New Hampshire border at Colbrook late Tuesday night and early Wednesday morning stopped at Lancaster, N. H., to send my Saturday column out by airmail. The postmaster said: "Better not go south—they're having a time with floods down there." Which was the first inkling we had that there had been any trouble in the New England states.

But not knowing the extent of it we continued for several hours down through White mountains. We passed Twin mountain about 10 a. m. It was still pouring

DEATH GOES ON HOLIDAY, 5 DIE IN OHIO TRAFFIC

Toll for Week-End Lowest In Weeks; 3 Injured In County; Youth Faints at Wheel.

Death went on a holiday in Ohio over the week-end, with only five persons reported killed in traffic for the lowest week-end toll since early last summer. Three of the five victims were pedestrians.

Richland county contributed three accidents which resulted in injuries to three persons, none of whom was believed hurt seriously.

Robert Fink, 18, R .D. 3, Mansfield, was treated at General hospital this morning after his car leaped a ditch and crashed into a house along Park avenue west road, three and a half miles west of Mansfield.

Fink, who was riding alone, was believed to have fainted at the wheel of his car about 7:30 a. m. today as he drove west on route 30 S, causing the car to swerve into a house and break off a porch post. The youth was treated for body bruises and minor head injuries.

State Patrolman C. B. Teiben said he learned Fink had been in ill health recently.

Collide In E. Mansfield.

Also in the hospital was Mrs. Frank Stoughton of Lucas who suffered shock and injuries to her back in an automobile collision Saturday night in East Mansfield. Mrs. Stoughton was riding with her husband and daughter, Jane, when their car was struck from behind by a machine driven by Virgil Shaffer of Bellville.

Stoughton told deputy sheriffs he slowed down for another car when Shaffer's car crashed into the rear of his machine.

Clara Lanehart, 8, of 499 South Main street, was treated for minor injuries Sunday after she was hit by a bicycle operated by Charles Stockwell, 24 Beethoven street. The accident occurred on Mansfield avenue.

Thirty Ohio Wesleyan football players escaped injury Saturday night when the bus in which they were returning to Delaware from a game at Cleveland collided with an automobile near Medina. Rev. Anna Eastwood, of Medina, occupant of the car was injured.

Three of the five persons killed in the state were pedestrians. One, Myron Hamlin, 64, of Cleveland was killed by a hit-skip driver.

Other victims were George Addis, 70, of Tiffin; Lloyd Dunnington, 22, Dayton; John Williams, 82, of near Felicity, and George Lindover, 34, Cincinnati.

Rome Ignores Roosevelt Appeal

ROME — (AP) — President Roosevelt's appeal to Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler and President Edouard Benes of Czechoslovakia for peace received scant attention in fascist circles today. Heat Handicaps Hunters As They Open War On Squirrels

While summer weather was welcomed generally today, an army of a quarter million Ohio hunters bemoaned the fact for it didn't help the opening of the 1938 squirrel season.

Experienced hunters who led the estimated 2,000 Richland county nimrods into the woods today, said the weather was "too dry and warm," but were counting on the state conservation departments' word that the little animals were more plentiful this season.

The season officially opens on Sept. 25 but because the date fell on Sunday, the opening was delayed until daybreak today.

Despite the discouraging weather however, at least one Mansfield hunter brought home the bag limit of four before many people awoke. He was Jake Schuster, 164 North Mulberry street, who walked into The News-Journal office at 7:45 a. m. on his way home carrying four fox squirrels.

When the nimrods took to the woods and fields this morning they were wearing their new license emblems on their backs for the first time. Failure to display the emblem in its proper place will result in arrest, conservation officials said.

They warned that under the new regulations this year the bag limit was four squirrels a day and four in possession at any time.

The season continues through Oct. 10.

Fox squirrels were reported to be numerous throughout Richland county and northern Ohio while gray squirrels were abundant in the southern part of the state.

Hitler Given Two Messages, Readies Nazi 'Last Stand'

PLEAS FAIL TO MOVE HITLER, BERLIN HEARS

Fuehrer, Surrounded by War Council, Plans No Direct Reply to Roosevelt.

SPEAKS THIS AFTERNOON

Considers Address Will Serve To Answer Peace Appeals Of Other Powers.

BULLETIN

LONDON — (INS) — Italian circles in close contact with Berlin believe that Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, in his speech tonight, may refer to the possibility of a general European agreement, the Exchange Telegraph company reported from Rome today.

(By International News Service)

BERLIN — In the face of President Roosevelt's dramatic eleventh-hour appeal for peace and a personal message from Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain proposing a new compromise, Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler stood by his guns today in demanding immediate and total dismemberment of Czechoslovakia.

The Fuehrer, surrounded by members of his supreme war council, made no plans to answer either Mr. Roosevelt or Premier Chamberlain directly.

Speech to Give Answer.

He considers the speech he is to deliver tonight during a "historic manifestation" at the Berlin sports palast will comprise an effective answer to threats and appeals alike. There appeared to be no doubt he would present an unflinching, uncompromising front, demanding immediate acceptance by Prague of Nazi Germany's final ultimatum.

The flying visit was called off late yesterday when Farley made other arrangements to return to New York, but Postmaster Herman E. Homberger wired from St. Paul this morning that the postmaster general would stop here as scheduled.

Farley is en route to New York from St. Paul, Minn., where he attended the annual convention of the National Association of Postmasters in session there last week.

Mansfield's postal carriers, and as many postal clerks as can leave the office, will be on hand to greet Farley, according to Harry W. Zellner, superintendent of mails.

Britain Dispatches Special Envoy To Give Hitler "Last Stand" Message; London Issues Gas Masks As All Nations Get Ready For Strife.

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(AP)—Reichsfuehrer Hitler today received from a special British envoy Prime Minister Chamberlain's "personal communication" sent him in an effort to forestall a European war.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Britain and France sped a trusted envoy to Adolf Hitler with a last-stand message while Prime Minister Chamberlain summoned parliament to rally and reassure his people for either war or peace.

French Premier Edouard Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet started home by airplane after a night and day of councils with Chamberlain and his ministers that resulted in a firm, united stand on two vital courses of action.

1. A last attempt to stop Hitler from invading Czechoslovakia and touching off a war.

2. Joint British-French military measures—how they will move men, warships and airplanes to the fighting lines if they are drawn into war.

A personal appeal by President Roosevelt to Hitler to save Europe's peace came amid the momentous conferences and gave Europe's democracies enormous moral stiffening.

Chamberlain's summons to parliament was for Wednesday.

Gas Masks Issued.

Naval, military and aerial precautions, meanwhile, assumed almost wartime dimensions in the Mediterranean.

British warships dotted North Sea lanes.

The first of Britain's 35,000,000 gas masks were issued.

Before Daladier and Bonnet took off from Croydon airdrome at 3:15 p. m. (9:15 a. m. EST) the French premier was understood to have sent a grateful reply to President Roosevelt's peace message.

British air raid precautions authorities appealed urgently for recruits. Rumbling trucks bore balloon barrage equipment—London's sky barricade against air attacks—to position.

At least one industrial city ordered parks dug up for air raid refuges.

PRAGUE: Czechs Spurn Nazi Demands, Calmly Gird For War

(By United Press)

PRAGUE — Czechoslovakia today informed Great Britain that Adolf Hitler's demands for surrender of the Sudetenland by Oct. 1 were unacceptable and should be subject to further discussions.

The government's decision, made after a night of study as the nation prepared for war, was understood to have been communicated to British Minister Basil Cochrane-Newton.

(The Czech refusal to accede to the German demands had been made known earlier in London.)

The government listed its objections to the Hitler demands, emphasizing economic, ethnographic and national defense reasons for refusing to accept.

The objections were rushed to completion so that they could be in the hands of Hitler before his address to the German nation this evening.

Meanwhile, the nation calmly prepared for the fateful decision of war or peace, confident that she would have allies if war comes.

She had arrested Ernest Kundt, a Sudeten German deputy to parliament and a leader of the German minority which Adolf Hitler has pledged himself to protect and charged him with operating a secret radio station here through which he informed Berlin of all developments.

ROME: Mussolini Commits His Country To War, Rallies Army

(By United Press)

ROME—Premier Benito Mussolini definitely committed Italy to participation in any European war today and was understood to be speeding back to Rome to take charge of Italian mobilization at the zero hour.

Addressing 100,000 cheering Fascists massed in the main square at Verona, Mussolini thundered:

"If war comes, Italy will not hesitate for one minute to participate in it."

While he was speaking, it was learned from an unimpeachable source here that all pilots in active service and in the air corps had been ordered to remain on 24-hour duty at their air fields, that all leaves had been cancelled, that commanders had been told not to approve even a temporary furlough.

In a speech yesterday, Mussolini inferentially threatened to mobilize Italy's armed forces. He said then that if French and British military preparations continued, he would take similar ones.

PARIS: Americans In France Bluntly Warned To Go Home

(By Associated Press)

PARIS—The American embassy in Paris today bluntly advised all American citizens to return to the United States, if they were able to do so.

Amid the darkest war clouds of many days, the embassy notice said:

"The American embassy today is addressing the following notice to American citizens residing in France:

"In view of the complicated situation prevailing in Europe it is considered advisable to recommend that American citizens who have no compelling reasons to continue their sojourn here arrange to return to the United States."

Americans already have begun the exodus.

Travel agencies were swamped with persons investigating sailing facilities.

Serino Freed, 4 Others Facing Trial In Conn Murder

JURY ACQUITS IN FIRST OF 5 SLAYING CASES

Suspected Actual Killer to Be Tried Oct. 10, Others Face Court Later.

CADIZ—The acquittal of Peter Serino on charges of slaying Ohio Highway Patrolman George Conn will not disrupt plans to try four others for the year-old gangland style execution, Prosecutor Fred Orum said today.

Orum said he and Capt. George Mingle of the patrol were "very disappointed" with Serino's acquittal late Saturday night, but the Bernard Massula, 22, Pittsburgh, would go on trial as scheduled Oct. 10.

Indicted for Murder.

Serino, the same age as Massula and also of Pittsburgh, was indicted on first degree murder charges with Massula, Booker Johnson, 42, colored now serving a burglary sentence in Ohio penitentiary, an unapprehended Bernice Bradley, and Charles Ford, 20, colored, who testified for the state that Serino drove the death car and that Massula was the actual killer.

"I was never worried about the verdict," said Serino after a farmer-dominated jury of ten men and two women deliberated six hours and freed him of the charge.

Sheriff Elmo Mattern said Serino would be returned to Pittsburgh to serve out a three to six year sentence for armed robbery.

Ford testified the five were in a parked car on a back road near Freeport, O., Sept. 27, 1937, when Conn approached and was shot as he attempted to question them. The patrolman noticed a woman, being transported for immoral purposes, bound and lying in the bottom of the car, he said. Both Serino and Massula declared they were in Pennsylvania when the killing took place.

Gas Masks Fitted To King, Queen, Little Princesses

(By International News Service)

LONDON—The king and queen of England were fitted for gas-masks today. So were Princess Elizabeth, Princess Margaret Rose and all other members of the royal family who live in Buckingham palace.

Trenches were dug in Hyde Park, St. James's park and Green park.

Orders were issued for immediate distribution of gas masks to the civilian population of nearly all London, Liverpool, Leeds and Newcastle.

These Laconic statements of fact appearing in British newspapers carried home to the people of England stronger than any diplomatic ultimatums or political culminations the horror that seemingly lies just across the horizon today.

In antcipation of the worst, England prepared for war.

Chickens may be wearing sun glasses before long, but the glasses will help to keep them out of fights and not to protect their eyes from the sun glare. Red makes a fowl want to fight, and the healthy crimson combs of chickens stir their scrappin' blood, often causing them to harm other chickens in the henyard, County Agent B. Ganyard said. The glasses make the chickens see a green world and take their mind off fighting, he explained. Ganyard displayed a pair of the glasses which are anchored to the fowl's nose by a pin through its beak.

Included in her collection is a hand-carved wooden doll more than 150 years old in addition to others from France, Scotland, Canada, Gibraltar and Algiers. She started the collection when her father, W. C. Mead, made a habit of bringing her dolls as souvenirs from the various cities he visited on business trips.

KILLER OF SIX?

Suicide Victim Slew Other Women, Police Believe.

ELMENDORF, Tex.—(U.P.)—Officers were certain today that Joe Ball, 46, had used his hatchet to kill perhaps half a dozen more women as ruthlessly as he did Hazel Brown, pretty young hostess at Ball's roadside tavern.

At least six women were known to have had "affairs" with Ball and then to have disappeared, just as Miss Brown did. Yesterday Miss Brown's body was taken from a shallow grave along the banks of the San Antonio river, almost 24 hours after Ball had taken his own life by putting a bullet into his heart.

Police took into custody Clifford Wheeler, 32, colored, who startled two deputies yesterday by calmly relating how he had assisted Ball in dismembering the body of Miss Brown and burying the parts.

A. F. OF L. LEADER HITS LABOR ACT

Frey Attacks Federal Board As 'Incompetent,' Flays Vast Powers.

(By United Press)

HOUSTON, Tex. — John P. Frey, head of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor, today attacked the National Labor relations board as 'incompetent" and "disruptive," and warned that vast powers held by the administrator of the wages-hours law threatens to impose "commissar control" over the nation's industrial life.

He told delegates to the department's 30th annual convention that there can be no industrial stability until the Wagner act has been amended and drastic changes made in the personnel of the NLRB. The wages-hours law must be revised, Frey said, to curb the unlimited power of its administrator which is "undemocratic and definitely dangerous to free institutions."

The labor leader combined a general attack on dictatorships and foreign 'isms with the the charge, previously made before the house committee investigating un-American activities, that there has been a heavy infiltration of Communists into the membership and the leadership of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

Frey absolved the "great majority" of CIO members of Communistic leanings but said that the encroachment of the Communists in CIO activities has been so steady and so widespread as to seriously menace membership control of the unions.

He declared against the NLRB that "never before in the history of any federal bureau, commission or board, has there been so disrupting a factor in American industry, or greater evidence of partisanship and incompetency."

IDEAL WEATHER GREETS OPENING OF CITY'S FALL DISPLAY DAYS

Warm September sunshine today ushered in the first of the Fall Display days, opening a week during which Mansfield merchants will present their new fall merchandise.

An interesting feature in connection with the display this year is the hobby show which brings to the downtown district the hobby collections of a number of Mansfielders. The Misspelled Word contest, another feature, officially opens at 7 p. m. today.

Forty-four retailers who are participating in the display event, will have hobby collections in their windows. Each window will also participate in the misspelled word contest. A placard, conspicuously displayed, will carry one misspelled word. To enter the contest entrants must obtain a blank from any one of the stores, locate the 44 misspelled words, and then write a slogan of 25 words or less on "Why I Should Make It a Hobby to Shop In Mansfield." All answers must be sent to the Retail Merchants' association, Farmers Bank building.

Cash prizes of $15, $10, $5 and 10 $1 prizes will be awarded contest winners, while gifts will be awarded classification winners in the hobby displays. Today and Tuesday are Style and Fashion days, which will be particularly interesting to the men and women who are planning fall and winter wardrobes.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

GUBERNATORIAL FOES SPEED UP VOTE CAMPAIGN

Governor Makes Statement as Sawyer, Bricker Prepare For Hectic Drives.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—An indication that Gov. Martin L. Davey might let autumn's campaign go by without lifting his voice in public utterance came today from the governor himself."

"You can't shoot a man for what he does not say," the executive declared.

The statement came as Charles Sawyer, who defeated Davey for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, and John W. Bricker, the Republican nominee, swung their campaigns into high gear.

The Democrats set forth armed with a platform adopted at their state convention last week, pledging to cleanse the statehouse of "every chisler and shake-down artist" and "eliminate all graft."

Blasts at "Boycott."

Davey and virtually all state employes had no part in the conclave and the "boycott" brought from Secretary of State William J. Kennedy a demand that the governor "unshackle" the workers and "be a man." As a result, observers felt there was little chance of a reconciliation between the executive and Sawyer.

At Cincinnati, Robert A. Taft, Republican candidate for U. S. senator, asserted in a radio address yesterday that his opponent, Sen. Robert J. Bulkley, and National Democratic Chairman James A. Farley failed to offer measures at the Democratic convention that would cope with current economic troubles.

At Akron, meantime, Henry J. Berrodin, chief of the state division of aid for the aged who was fired last week by Davey for yielding to U. S. demands for "corrections" in the state system, said he went to Washington last December and asked for a federal investigation of the system.

"I went without Governor Davey's knowledge," Berrodin said, "and insisted that a survey be made . . . relative to the irregularities that existed. If Davey had known about that trip, I would have been fired then."

Not That It Matters

Discovered By Tourists, Quaint Gaspe Soon Will Lose Old-World Charm

—By JANE WILLIAMS

IT WAS inevitable that the Gaspe peninsula, that thumb of old Quebec that juts out into the Atlantic, with the broad St. Lawrence river and St. Lawrence bay to the north and the Baie des Chaleurs on the south, should be "discovered" by the motoring public which is always eager for new worlds to conquer. It is equally inevitable that within another decade or so that same public will spoil the quaint charm of it and change these simple, almost-primitive people into tourist-baiters.

I'm glad I came to the Gaspe while the Gaspesians still live as they have lived for the past 400 years; while they are still friendly and hospitable; still shy and self-conscious at their own efforts to speak the few English words they know.

For already they are changing after only a few years of contact with the outside world—the one road around the peninsula was finished only four years ago—and many of the younger generation are impatient with the old way of wresting a meager, hard living from the earth and sea.

Herewith is presented Jane Williams' delayed "Not That It Matters" column, written during a motor tour of Gaspe peninsula. The column, mailed from Lancaster, N. H., was delayed in transit by the hurricane and floods that swept New England.

The young Gaspesian who took us out in his father's fishing boat for the trip around formidable Perce Rock and Bonaventure island, gave voice to his changling world when he said:

"For two 'undred years my people 'ave fished in these waters. Always it is a 'ard way to live. But now people come ever' year and use our boats for looking around and fishing and pay us $2 an hour. It is a more better way to make money, n'est ce pas? We not fishing much in the summer now."

THE GASPE trip is a long, hard one from Mansfield. It is almost a thousand miles to Quebec and another thousand around the peninsula back to Quebec, and already we have driven about 1,400 miles of that distance over gravel roads, some of them bad enough to give the party the jitterbugs.

Considering the fact that you are in a land that is entirely foreign, that has been practically primitive until 10 years ago, you find very good accommodations. And it's been fun to try to make the natives understand us. I gave up trying my first year French the first day and took to using gestures. It got me farther.

THE GATEWAY to the peninsula is at Ste. Flavie on the north coast. Starting from here there is a succession of tiny hamlet and villages that stretch all the way around the Atlantic and the Bai des Chaleurs to Montapedia on the south coast.

These fishing villages of all French-speaking people are so close together that they seem as uniform as the beads on a rosary, each one named for a favorite saint or some legend that is repeated through the long winters by the villagers. There is Ste. Felicite, St. Edouard des Mechins, St. Paul des Capucins, Ste. Anne de la Pocatiere, Trois Pistoles, Anse aux Gascons, Cap Chat, Cap aux Renards, and dozens of others. Their populations vary from less than a hundred to 1,800 or 2,000.

EACH hamlet is dominated by a huge church, usually of stone. Their towers rise so high that they may be seen for miles before the town itself can be sighted. A great stone church, much larger than any in Mansfield, may be found in villages no larger than Windsor or Ontario. It is the community's only wealth, and the pious citizens mortgage their farms, homes and fishing boats to pay for the church. The Gaspe is 97 per cent Catholic and the church is the social and educational center of the villages as well as the religious center.

NOTES on the Cuff: Acres of cod fish drying in the sun on wire tables . . . French peasants ploughing with oxen . . . Architecture non-descript and unattractive, houses weather-beaten and unpainted on the peninsula . . . But in the mainland of the province, charming French houses and Irish peasant cottages. . . . We crossed the one railroad on the peninsula 98 times in 160 miles. . . . Summer flowers growing more luxuriously than anywhere in Ohio.

* * *

AS FOR SCENERY, I doubt if there is any like it elsewhere in North America. It can't be described in an ordinary newspaper article. When we came into Perce just at sunset, and saw, across the bay, the rock that rides forever like a ghostly, phantom ship's hulk, outlined against a sky as pink as a girl's party dress and a sea as blue as a baby's eyes. I knew that I was seeing one of the most breath-takingly lovely scenes in the world.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Dies Committee's Done Good Work But Job Isn't Nearly Completed as Yet

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

There is something pathetic about the proposal of Representative Martin Dies to form a great league to preserve the fundamental principles of Americanism and to oppose Fascism and Communism in the United States.

Mr. Dies, chairman of the house committee on un-American activities, seems to underrate the influence of his own inquiry. Contrary to his apparent belief, his investigation to date has had good effect and if continued, with due attention to the activities of Italian Fascists and German Nazi groups, will command the respectful attention of the nation. On the other hand, there is a danger that an emotional nationalistic organization would develop into a strong-arm machine itself, and certainly it is unwise to create such a force under the influence of a committee of congress.

Whatever distress it may cause completely loyal citizens of Italian or German origin or stock, the fact remains that both Italian Fascists and German Nazis here do abuse the tolerance of this country. Black shirts join brown shirts in demonstrations of contempt for the American form of government and for those of similar blood who cherish American liberties. Not only that, but by the terrible power of brutal reprisals of the kin of such Americans still residing in the old countries they wield a coercive force over American citizens in the United States.

The enmity of Mussolini and Hitler for this country and its people has been expressed repeatedly. Mussolini's papers constantly call us a nation of gangsters, and, as Mr. Cianfarra, of the New York Times, recently wrote from Rome, a decent word has not been written of this country in the Italian press in more than two years. This is the policy of the Italian government.

Hitler expressed his intentions when one of his state newspapers threatened that the reich would take an interest in American affairs which would not be pleasant. This intervention in American affairs is to be seen in the activities of the Nazi bund, our equivalent of the Henlein conspiracy in Czechoslovakia.

Mr. Dies has paid too little attention to the Fascists and the Nazis. And, although he has done good work on the Communists, as their angry protests show, even that job is incomplete. It is a sad state of affairs, but even in this free country this committee of congress will find it hard to protect from vengeance American citizens giving testimony against Italian and German agents. The Fascist and Nazi foreign press maintains close relations with the consulates of these surly capitals, and the obvious power of this press to intimidate advertisers and others of the foreign colonies should not be ignored.

McCONNELL-ZEDIKER WEDDING PERFORMED

Rev. D. N. Roller Reads Ceremony At First Presbyterian Church Late Saturday Afternoon Before Friends, Relatives.

SATURDAY afternoon Mansfielders witnessed one of the prettiest weddings the city has seen when Miss Elizabeth McConnell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland V. McConnell, 42 Euclid avenue, became the bride of Gene Henry Zediker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rex A. Zediker, 142 Parkwood boulevard. The ceremony was performed by Rev. David Neal Roller at the First Presbyterian church at 4:30 p. m.

The bride was given in marriage by her father as the bridal party stood before the altar which was decorated with baskets of white chrysanthemums and pompons and four seven-branch candelabra and two cathedral candles. The front of the church was decorated with Southern smilax and palms and ferns, and the white satin ribbons attached to the pews were trimmed with small bouquets of white pompons.

Nuptial Music.

Mrs. A. L. Twitchell, organist, played the nuptial music.

The former Miss McConnell wore an ivory satin gown made with fitted lines. Tiny satin covered buttons extended from the back of the sweetheart neckline to the waist. The dress was finished with short puffed sleeves and a medium length train. A full-length veil of tulle was fastened to her hair with gardenias. She carried a rosette of gardenias and lilies-of-the-valley.

Her three attendants, Miss Katherine Rhoads, maid of honor, Mrs. Willis Krumlaw, Ashland, and Miss Betty Hout, all wore identical gowns. The garments, made of ivory moire, were cut on the sweetheart type neckline. Tiny velvet hats in bronze shades tipped with ostrich plumes in contrasting shades added a note of color to each costume. The attendants carried rosettes of bronze and yellow pompons and Talisman roses.

Raymond McGann, Mt. Sterling, Ill., served as Mr. Zediker's best man. Ushers were Charles Spreng, Paul Sturges, jr., Inwood Smith and David Kohler.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Zediker, the bridal party and members of the families received about 60 relatives and friends before the fireplace at Westbrook Country club. For the ceremony and reception Mrs. McConnell appeared in wine colored velvet with matching hat and shoes and a corsage of orchids. Mrs. Zediker wore a rosewook velvet frock with brown accessories and a corsage of gardenias and lilies-of-the-valley.

The table at the club was centered with a wedding cake, and bouquets of gardenias and pompons were placed at either end. The cloth was covered with smilax and adiantum. The small tables were decorated with vases of white pompons.

The couple are Miss Betty Jane Davidson, daughter of Mrs. Rae Davidson, 74 Park avenue west, and Don Raymond Crider, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy H. Crider, 396 Springmill street.

Miss Dorothy Gannaway sang "Because" and "L'amour, Toujours, L'amour." The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Robert Motague.

Attending the bride was Miss Frances Meggitt, maid of honor, who wore black crepe trimmed in aqua velvet, with black accessories, and a corsage of Talisman roses. Bernard Lee Harper was the best man.

The bride wore teal vlue velvet with dubonnette accessories. She had a gardenia corsage. For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Davidson wore wine crepe with black and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Mrs. Crider had a gown of black and white chiffon with black accessories and a Talisman rose corsage.

After the quiet ceremony the bridal party received friends and relatives at the home of the bridegroom. A three-tiered wedding cake flanked by candles formed the centerpiece for the buffet table from which 60 guests were served. The couple then left for a short wedding trip to return to Mansfield early next month, and make their home at the Springmill street address.

For traveling Mrs. Crider wore a beige dress with Kelley green and brown accessories. She was employed at the Ohio Brass company, and was graduated from Mansfield Senior high school. Mr. Crider, who is also a graduate of the Mansfield high school, is employed at the Ohio Fuel Gas company.

What Makes Popularity? Readers Ask

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority On Problems of Love and Marriage.

Girls are continually writing me letters to ask me why they lack dates, when other girls are dated ahead for weeks. They tell me they're just as good-looking, just as amusing and dress as well as the date-getter. The reasons for the other girls' popularity do not make sense to them.

The date-getter, as you may have noticed, is often not beautiful. She may not be smart-looking or well-groomed or amusing. She may not be brazen, flaunt her sex or suggest that she's the stuff of which easy or difficult conquest is made. All rules fail when it comes to solving this mystery of mysteries.

A girl's popularity may be built up by circumstances, in the beginning. In the initial stages of the game, it has to do with a certain adolescent's party, where a girl gets her first start as popularity plus. The party isn't really under way. Everything is more or less tentative. Boys are shy. She may succeed in getting three or four boys around, because one of them may be a cousin, a next-door neighbor or what have you? The corporal's guard hanging around Annabel conveys the art of discovery. Other boys sidle up to get an introduction.

Reputations for popularity have had no greater beginnings than this. If a girl is started off as a frost, she's likely to remain a frost. If she begins her social career as a siren, bit by bit that reputation will be built up for her.

But the secret of genuine fascination lies deeper, and the only thing discoverable about it is that the more feminine a woman is, the greater is her lure. For some reason or other, if she can subtly convey the idea that she needs protection from a cruel world—or, if there's nothing else handy, a mouse or a bat—the chances are she has scored a point.

As you have observed, some of the handsomest and most charming women in every community are spinsters. Girls with no claim to beauty snatched admirers and fiances from right under the noses of these beautiful ones The women who have held men enthralled from the beginning of time have not been conspicuous for their goodness, or their evil, for that matter.

A homely widow, no longer young, Madame de Maintenon, married the most gorgeous king of France, Louis IV. She was good. Nell Gwynn, who fascinated Charles II and established a ducal family, which still holds sway in England today, was no saint. She was witty, vivacious and pretty—there are the two types for you.

The "come-hither" look has in it a spice of flattery, a suggestion of a caress, which makes every man feel he's a hero for romance, and a "de'il with the women." The mystery grows apace with the years; and part of the mystery is that no other woman can understand why she hasn't got it and some other woman has.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I regretted my demand of Katie that she finish her sentence, almost before it had left my lips.

For it was a "condition, not a theory," which confronted me. The flaming anger at my discovery of Katie's "snooping" was fast being succeeded by the cold realization of what might well be the consequences of upsetting the emotional balance of the faithful woman who bore the brunt of the housekeeping and cooking upon her sturdy and capable shoulders.

Katie Psychic?

I was to wonder later whether Katie was psychic enough to read my dismay and shrewd enough to make use of it. If she were not, then fear gave wings to her imagination. With an effort her eyes ceased their roving about the kitchen and looked straight into mine.

"Sure I feenish ett," she said with superb aplomb which bordered upon impudence. "I shoost going say dot now he know mudder qveen so seeck, Olina princess haf to stay mit her mudder, haf no time to fool mit him, act so sweet und silly. Meester Noel no like dat, you bet your boots. He lof hees jung wife too much to cast his eyes at oder voman's, efen eff she ees bee-yu-ti-ful prin-cess."

Intentionally or not, she had given me a way out! But I could not have taken it if I had not been assured, by long experience of Katie's little ways, that her "snooping" would have no evil effects. What she had learned would be locked in her own heart. Even Jim would not be her confidant, although he was barred, I knew, only by her fear of his anger when he should learn the underhand source of her knowledge.

As it was, however, I seized upon it eagerly.

"You're probably right, Katie," I said carelessly, "but see that you do not discuss Mr. Noel or Miss Mary with anyone."

"Me, I no likely to shoot off mine mout about my peoples," she said with dignity.

"I know that, Katie," I said appeasingly. "And now I won't bother you any more. Mr. Noel will be right down. Unless, of course, you need me."

Doesn't Need Help.

"Vot I need anybody for?" Katie asked grandly. "Me, I haf everyting vaiting already yet. Ver coffee perks in two-tree-minutes more, eferyting all hunky donky."

"That's very nice, Katie," I told her gravely, waiting until I was safely outside the door to smile at her atrocious paraphrasing of American slang phrases, old and new, to the study of which she hasn't devoted enough time to rid her speech of its accent and twisted syntax.

"What's so funny?" Dicky demanded at my elbow.

"I'll tell you later," I said in a low tone, and then raised my voice significantly.

"Ah, Noel! You are just in time. Katie just told me she had everything ready. Come into the dining room."

Notes From a Model's Diary

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Consuelo starts rehearsals for her new show soon. There have been general company calls all this week for the purpose of reading the story, going over the music and starting ensemble numbers. The producer has given her a marvelous cast and is spending no end of money to make the show a success.

Consuelo has been working like a beaver with her singing coach and has been studying some Hungarian national dances with a very important teacher. We are going to make the clothes of the principals; that is, some of the clothes, for national costumes will be worn, too, and these are being made by a famous theatrical costume company. Consuelo is going to wear some gorgeous clothes, and her national wedding costume and magnificent head-dress is going to be something.

Workroom Busy.

We are making some exquisite clothes, rich dresses and some gorgeous furs. One ensemble is of gold lame and mink with a beautiful hat of gold lame with a huge diadem of mink. The workroom will be ever so busy with that order as well as the regular work. And then I expect to book a big wedding order tomorrow. One of my favorite customers is going to be married soon. She is such a charming girl and I do want to be able to give her plenty of attention and to see that everything is as she wants it. She is a poor little rich girl, for she is an only child, and her parents were killed in an automobile accident when she was only four years old. She hasn't many relatives, and a firm of lawyers, the head of which is some distant relative, has been handling her affairs and looking after her tremendous fortune.

Well, last year, a junior partner entered the firm. That young man was a self-made fellow who had worked his way through law school and whose thesis for his degree had attracted the attention of the head of the firm. After he passed his bar exam, he was taken in as a clerk, but did such marvelous work that he was made a junior partner. One of his tasks was to see the young heiress whenever there was something she wished to discuss. And after she met him there was always something to discuss. Can you guess the sequel? She is to marry the young lawyer. And I hope they will be always happy, for she is a sweet girl.

Stunning Evening Frock.

This is one of the evening frocks that I shall suggest for the trousseau, for the bride is tall and stately. It is of cyclamen pink satin, a most effective fabric. The halter-type bodice is draped up to a bow of the fabric. The skirt also is draped up to bow from the belt. Its drapery conceals the wrap-over which forms a curved slit, showing a good bit of the leg when walking. The back is almost straight except for a slight flare toward the hem.

Souffle's Easy Dish With Recipe

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

HERE ARE some recipes which were received from readers. We hope you find one or more or, best of all, every formula entirely to your liking.

The first recipe comes from a reader who is visiting in England and who begged a chicken recipe from her hostess. The first requisite is a good roasting fowl. Joint it and flour well. Fry a large onion in butter in a baking tin; when done, stir in a tablespoon of flour. Add the chicken, some chopped parsley, a little thyme (fresh from the garden or that herb window box if possible), two strips of bacon, cut into narrow strips, and some seasoning. Cover it with water, then put a layer of bread crumbs over all, and some dabs of butter. Bake in slow oven for two hours until nicely browned.

Cheese Souffle.

Cheese souffle is another recipe from the same source. Pour a cup of scalded milk over a cup of bread crumbs and add one-quarter pound of cheese grated or cut into very small pieces. Season with salt and a dash of cayenne. Add the yolks of three eggs beaten very lightly, then the whites. Pour into a baking dish and bake for 20 minutes in a moderate oven.

Another dish, a sweet, is made with an ounce of cornstarch mixed with a little cold milk. Boil remainder of half pint of milk and pour onto the creamed cornstarch, stirring well all the time. Return to the saucepan and boil for six minutes. Stir in a beaten egg, sufficient sugar to sweeten and one-half pint of sieved, cooked fruit. Mix well and serve chilled.

From Southland.

Here is an interesting recipe from our own southland. Rice and peanut butter combines to make a delicious loaf in a dish that calls for three cups boiled rice, one cup white sauce, one cup peanut butter, two teaspoons salt, one teaspoon parsley, chopped fine; one-half teaspoon nutmeg, one egg, three-quarters cup fresh bread crumbs and two cups tomato sauce. Mix and shape into loaf and pack in greased pan. Bake 35 minutes in 350 F. oven. Serve with hot tomato sauce poured over.

Next we take a big leap and land in beautiful Vermont, from which state a reader sends us a recipe for a favorite dish. Red flannel hash calls for six medium, cooked beets, four medium, cooked potatoes, three tablespoons butter, tablespoon cream, one cup chopped hamburger steak, salt and pepper. Chop potatoes and beets, mix with the hamburger and season with salt and pepper. Place two tablespoons butter in frying pan, add the mixture and moisten with a little hot water. Cook slowly in a covered pan. When nearly ready to serve, add the cream mixed with a tablespoon melted butter. Brown quickly and serve.

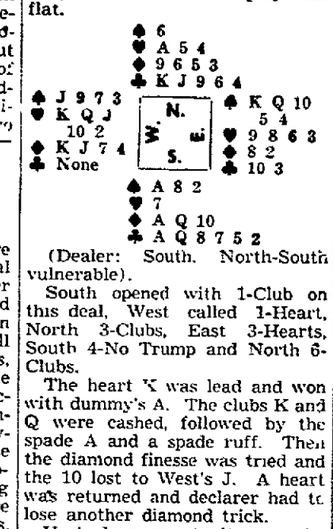
CLEARING THE STAGE

SOME deals are a good deal like a theatrical performance which necessitates clearing the stage before the scenery can be put in position for the next act. Ruffing out the small cards of a couple of suits, to get ready for a lead-throwing end play, is greatly similar to disposing of the first two acts before staging the third. If the acts are not presented in their proper order, the entire play falls flat.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable).

South opened with 1-Club on this deal, West called 1-Heart, North 3-Clubs, East 3-Hearts, South 4-No Trump and North 6-Clubs.

The heart K was lead and won with dummy's A. The clubs K and Q were cashed, followed by the spade A and a spade ruff. Then the diamond finesse was tried and the 10 lost to West's J. A heart was returned and declarer had to lose another diamond trick.

He had an opportunity to make his contract by clearing the hands of both spades and hearts before attempting the diamond finesse. With trumps remaining in both hands and voids in both spades and hearts, when West won the first diamond trick, he would have been forced to return a diamond to South or else return either a spade or heart. If the latter, South would have been able to ruff and discard a diamond.

What is the best defense against South's contract of 3-No Trump?

CONFLICTING AUGURIES are noted on this day's astrological forecast, with major planets under high influence, both adversely and beneficially. There may be sudden or surprising events, upsetting all previous calculations and plans, and perhaps demanding a complete change of environment and objectives. And while this may be confusing and perplexing, a very powerful friend may help with wise counsel and more substantial cooperation, and some place along the way romance and adventure loom. Be careful in handling funds.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of surprises and upsets, with adventure and romance of possibly devastating effect calling for an about-face in objectives and a rearrangement of established plans. In the dilemma, however, a sturdy friendship may be counted on to counsel and assist practically. It will be necessary to use funds carefully.

A child born on this day may have a career of adventure and romance, in which unusual talents and aspirations may lead to prominence. Its advancement may culminate natural ability in art, music or poetry, or may swing to science or invention

Necks Rebel From Long Neglect

By MME. QUI VIVE

Keep an eye on your neck, woman. Don't have any confidence in it at all. Without warning it may suddenly go back on you, fall into accordion pleats, behave in a manner that is downright mean. Necks often age before faces. There's no sense in it, but they do. Perhaps they are mad because the face gets all the creaming, petting and patting. It's just as well to give the neck the creamy left-overs after the beautifying ceremonies.

Reducing will give the plump neck a crepe-like surface. The thin neck, so graceful and pretty, is not to be depended upon. It develop fiddle strings or necklace lines almost overnight.

Firm Muscles.

Build up a firm musculature and all will be well. Start in the late twenties. If you don't, you'll be sorry when the forties come along. That's when old Pop Time goes neck-wrecking, clutches women by the throat, sends them hurrying to beauty shops for repairs. It is no easy matter to restore the youthful contour, firm tissues, smooth surface. Any facial operator will tell you that.

Use cream lavishly. The flesh eats it up, thrives upon it.

Here is an exercise that will tone fibres and tissues:

Place the left hand on the collar bones, palm flat, fingers spread. On the top of the head place the right hand. Pull the flesh down to force the head far back. Throw the head back slowly, close the teeth tightly together pulling up the lower lip and flexing the chin. There will be a hard pull on all the fibers of the throat, those muscles that interlace from the chest to the neck to the jaws. Relax and repeat.

Local Treatment.

Local treatment is of inestimable benefit. Every night palm in a heavy massage emollient. Up and down with flattened palms. Three minutes of the treatment should be followed with ice friction, after which a wash cloth is wrung out of ice water, slapped on the throat, covered with a dry towell. The flesh will soon be steaming, showing that the blood streams are on the go, bringing nourishment to depleted tissues. Use cold water again in the morning, rub briskly with a coarse towel.

Tygers Get Down to Work for Game With Indiana Foe

Meet Hammond Here Saturday

Murphy's Men Outclassed By Massillon, 33-7; Record Crowd Witnesses Tussle.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

THEIR hides battered and bruised by the long claws of a band of the most vicious footballers to invade the Mansfield lair in several Autumns, the Tygers limped back on the practice field at Mansfield high school today to prepare for their next encounter this week-end.

Thoroughly tanned by a 33 to 7 margin by the Massillon Tigers in front of an overflow crowd of 8,000 at Stadium field Saturday, Coach Russ Murphy's pigskin troop engages the Hammond, Ind. Clark high gridmen on the home front next Saturday.

Whether the whipping administered by the crack Massillon eleven will have any affect on the Tygers remains to be seen, but Murphy indicated today that hard work this week would probably erase the memory of the beating from their minds.

Mansfield may not run into quite as much trouble Saturday as it encountered against Massillon, but Hammond can hardly be regarded as a push-over. The Pioneers, who walloped Kankakee, 32 to 6, last week, have won two of their three games.

The Tygers came out of the imbroglio with more than their share of bruises and bumps, but none of the injuries are serious.

Attendance figures are not available, but the assemblage that taxed the capacity of Stadium field Saturday was probably the largest ever to witness a football game in Mansfield, and what the mammoth crowd saw was a spectacle dominated by Massillon's tribe of gridmen.

Still smarting under the 6 to 6 tie that robbed them of a perfect record against Ohio foes last fall, the visiting Tigers achieved revenge in a manner that left no doubt of their superiority.

Mansfield Whipped By Great Team.

POINTING their guns toward another football title, the Massillon men of the grid produced the most spectacular demonstration of football witnessed at Stadium field since the Tiger's Mike Bylene and Sandusky's Whittaker brothers ran wild out there in 1935.

Slusser

Mansfield never had a chance to win in the game in which it sought its first victory over Massillon since the rivalry lapsed 'way back in the pre-war period was renewed three years ago.

Massillon struck fast and furiously in the second period to obtain an advantage that the Tygers never threatened.

The unseasoned Mansfield club fought with everything at its command to hold the score to a reasonable figure, but found in Massillon a team that could not be discouraged.

Bad breaks robbed the Tigers of two scoring opportunities in the opening period, but they could not be denied in the second quarter.

They proved quite definitely in the second frame that their bid for a fourth straight mythical state title would not be challenged very seriously by Mansfield.

The Tigers threw passes fearlessly, ripped off gains through their line and around the terminals with monotonous regularity and defended their own territory against all but one Mansfield advance.

Mansfield, on the other hand, showed a sustained drive only twice throughout the tussle, and one of the marches was nipped one yard short of the goal.

Reputably the slowest team to represent Mansfield in many years, the Tygers were kept busy chasing Massillon during the greater part of the afternoon. Their inexperience contributed much to their downfall. Only one man who saw service in the Massillon game last year was in the lineup.

Not once in the first half did Mansfield invade Massillon domain. Failure to gain consistently through the fast-charging Massillon line could not be offset by the Tyger's aerial game.

The Tygers completed 11 out of 22 passes, but only one netted more than nine yards. Five of the throws were intercepted by the invaders who turned two into touchdowns.

Brown's Men Win Ball Game in Air.

ALTHOUGH dangerous on the ground, Coach Paul Brown's men won the ball game in the air. Massillon completed only six throws, but they produced two touchdowns and set the stage for another.

Mansfield's failure to break up the devastating long range aerial attack operated by the visitors can be attributed to a great extent to the time permitted the Tigers' pitchers to throw.

Picking out the individual star of the game is not difficult. It was Quarterback George Slusser, who did about everything but hang up the scores on the scoreboard.

Slusser personally lugged across two of the five touchdowns threw to Horace Gillom for two others and contributed a nice piece of blocking on Fred Toles' touchdown run off a Mansfield pass.

In the Massillon line, Bill MacMichael, a forward without a peer at Stadium field Saturday, was a standout.

Capt. Rich Nagle carried most of the load in the Mansfield backfield, with Howard Hershey contributing some of the fanciest bits of ball carrying of the day. Marshall Smith also showed promise of developing into a capable leather toter in a brief appearance.

Al Schwaner, who plays in the line on defense, Russ Beer and Jack Phaler stood out in the Mansfield wall.

All of the Massillon touchdowns but one were scored in a spectacular fashion.

Pitifully weak against the long Massillon passes, Mansfield was shoved within the shadows of its own goal posts before the game was more than a few minutes old.

Early in the game, Slusser heaved the inflated pigskin over the heads of the secondary to Ray Getz, who was downed by Nagle from behind on the six. This scoring chance was lost when the center passed badly to Slusser.

A 15-yard penalty halted another Massillon drive in the first frame after the advance had reached the 23.

Score Three Times In Second Period.

THE Tigers quickly made up for these failures in the second quarter. Slusser started the touchdown parade on a buck from the two to culminate a drive that originated on their own 16, where a beautiful boot by Nagle had placed the oval.

Dick McMullen's recovery of a fumble by Slusser on Mansfield's 20 delayed the second of three touchdowns scored in the second period. The Tigers also forfeited the ball on downs on the 38 before scoring again, but not for long.

On the first play, Slusser intercepted a short pass by Nagle back of the scrimmage line and wiggled free to score.

Near the end of the half, Slusser tossed a 40-yard pass to Gillom, who took the throw on the 15 on the dead run and scampered into the end zone.

The third play of the second half found Toles grabbing a Mansfield pass out of the air and the colored end did not stop until he crossed the goal line. He intercepted it on his own 47.

Immediately following this score, Mansfield came to life after Hershey returned the kickoff 30 yards from the seven. A Nagle-to-Hershey pass, good for 27 yards, featured the drive to the one, where Mansfield was held for downs.

The Tygers came right back after the punt, and this time they swept across after Ike Smith, who returned to the lineup after an injury put him on the bench shortly after the start of the game, ripped off a couple of nice gains. The march was climaxed with a short pass over the line on the nine from Nagle to Hershey.

Massillon started its last touchdown drive in the third period after the kickoff, but had to wait until the final quarter to tally. Slusser passing to Gillom from the 31 for the score.

In the fading minutes after Mansfield stopped an advance on its 26, Slusser pitched a long pass to Roscoe Clendening, who fumbled on the eight when tackled. Mansfield recovered to hold the ball as the gun sounded.

While the difference in first downs was slight, 12 to 8, in favor of Massillon, the Tigers' supremacy is revealed in the statistics. Massillon picked up 176 yards from rushing and 197 via the aerial route, while Mansfield marked up a total of 174 yards.

Undoubtedly, Mansfield is represented by a much stronger team than the Tygers showed Saturday. Injuries suffered by McMullen, Horvath and Dugger in the Akron West game were aggravated Saturday, and none of the casualties was able to play steady. The injury suffered by Smith also handicapped the team.

Had the Tygers been at full strength, Murphy believes Mansfield would have given the Massillon boys their toughest argument of the season.

Massillon Presents Colorful Band.

MASSILLON not only presented a grand football performance, but also a colorful mid-game show. Led by a student in a tiger skin and four feminine drum majors, the touted Massillon "swing" band staged what was the most spectacular intermission act ever offered at Stadium field by a visiting school.

Mansfield high school's band and girls' drum corps, 124 strong, also drew a big hand as they stunted during the intermission.

Bucks to Hold Spotlight In Ohio Saturday

Get First Test In Big Ten Game This Week-End.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio State university's battle with Indiana's Hoosiers steals the Buckeye state's gridiron spotlight next week-end because the Big Ten title hopes of each hinge on the result, but for football thrills and chills the clash at Cincinnati between Ohio university and Xavier looms as "tops."

It's one game that can't be doped, but the chances are it will be packed with dynamite. Ohio university turned in the season's biggest upset Saturday by defeating Illinois, 6 to 0, while the Musketeers were on the short end of a 6 to 0 count with the University of South Carolina.

Title Fever Rampant.

On the Big Ten front, even the sudden loss of Johnny Rabb, star Buckeye fullback of two years, because of an injured knee, has not stifled the title fever so rampant in Columbus since Coach Francis Schmidt came to town five years ago.

Saturday Indiana not only will supply Ohio State with its first 1938 title test, out with the first and only conference game of the week.

Three other members, Minnesota, Purdue and Illinois, continue their outside warfare, while Michigan, Wisconsin, Northwestern and Chicago will engage in their season's openers.

High spots on the week's schedule probably will be the Nebraska-Minnesota, Michigan State-Michigan and Marquette-Wisconsin games. The Indiana-Ohio and games. The Indiana-Ohio and Xavier-Ohio U. contests headline a 22-game program for Ohio fans.

Out-of-state foes will furnish the opposition in exactly half the program, six of the 11 being played on foreign soil. Leading the inter-state engagements is the Ohio Wesleyan-Marshall match at Huntington, in which the West Virginians, undefeated champs of the Buckeye last year, are expected to have little trouble. Wesleyan absorbed a 33 to 0 beating at the hands of Western Reserve Saturday night, while Marshall ran over Carson-Newman, 44 to 0.

Make 1938 Debuts.

Five schools will make their 1938 debuts this week-end, Kenyon, Wooster, Case, Baldwin-Wallace and Oberlin, all Ohio conference teams, seeing action for the first time.

BILLY BURKE HOLDS LEAD IN $13,500 TOURNAMENT

SCARSDALE, N. Y.—(UP)—Billy Burke, Cleveland, held a one-stroke lead today as the surveying field teed off in the semi-final 36-hold round of the $13,500 Westchester open golf tournament.

He fired a par 70 yesterday for a 36-hole total of 139, while Paul Runyan, with whom he had been tied at 69 on Saturday, carded a 71 yesterday for a 140 total and a second place tie with Chandler Harper, Portsmouth, Va., pro.

Ohio university, of Athens, defeated the University of Illinois for the second time in four years, when they conquered the Illini at Champaign, 6-0, Saturday. Gridmen Plunge Into Business Of Deciding Titles This Week

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Taking a deep breath after last Saturday's widespread but not very numerous upsets and narrow escapes, college football teams plunge into October and the business of deciding conference and sectional championships this week. Here's how the situation shapes up by sections.

EAST: Pitt, off to a flying start toward the mythical eastern championship with a 19-0 victory over West Virginia, takes on the Temple Owls, who beat out Albright 6-0 Friday. Yale meets a promising Columbia team at New Haven; Cornell tackles Colgate and Harvard opens against Brown. More in the usual line, Dartmouth, 46-0 victor over Bates, meets St. Lawrence; Princeton opens against Williams and Penn against Lafayette, unbeaten last season.

Army, which walloped Wichita, 32-0, meets Virginia Poly, beaten 18-0 by Duke. And Navy, 26-0 winner over William and Mary, plays Virginia Military. Penn State takes on one of the south's leading upset victims, Maryland, which lost 19-6 to Richmond.

MID-WEST: Indiana and Ohio State, two topflight candidates for the Big Ten title, clash in the opener at Columbus; Minnesota, 15-0 winner over Washington, faces the Nebraska make a trio of touch "openers." Illinois, upset 6-0 by Ohio university, plays De Paul; Purdue, 19-6 winner over Detroit, meets Butler and Chicago opens against Bradley.

Kansas, which outlasted Texas 19-18 Saturday, meets Notre Dame in the first game for the Irish. Oklahoma invades the southwest to play Rice, 1937 champions in that district.

SOUTH: Tennessee, which beat Sewanee 26-3 to open the southeastern conference campaign, faces Clemson of the southern conference, 13-10 victor over Tulane's title candidates. Mississippi, upset victor over Louisiana State, 20-7, tapers off against Louisiana Tech. Tulane plays Auburn, and Mississippi State, 19-0 winner over Howard, meets Florida in other conference contests.

North Carolina and North Carolina State, old rivals and both hopeful of winning the southern conference title, head that circuit with their clash at Raleigh. The Tar Heels beat Wake Forest 14-6 and State downed Davidson 19-7 last Saturday. Georgia and South Carolina meet in another interloop game.

SOUTHWEST: Arkansas and Texas Christian pry off the lid in the southwest conference after beating Oklahoma Aggies, 27-7, and Centenary, 13-0, respectively. Texas and Louisiana State meet in a clash of already beaten teams.

FAR WEST: Southern California sets out to recover from the Alabama beating by opening its Pacific coast conference season against Oregon State, which suffered a 13-0 setback from Idaho's Vandals. California, which barely pulled out a 12-7 decision over St. Mary's in the last quarter, meets Washington State. Oregon, at the head of the standing after a 10-2 triumph over Washington State, takes on U. C. L. A. Stanford opens its campaign against a powerful non-conference rival, Santa Clara, while Washington meets Idaho.

Hammon Keeps Hits Scattered In 4-3 Victory.

In a nip-and-tuck ball game that was not definitely decided until the final put-out, John Stoner's Rex Billiards defeated the 1937 city sandlot champion Mohican Chevrolets, 4 to 3, at the Fairground Sunday.

Keeping the Chevies' 10 hits scattered, Hammon kept himself out of trouble in all but the first and eighth innings in which the losers scored their three runs. He struck out eight.

Potye started for the Chevrolets, but he was relieved by Boyer after the Cuemen completed their scoring in the fourth. Linta of the Chevrolets was the batting star with three singles.

Eagles Figure In Grid Race

Philly Beats Giants to Hold Second Place.

CHICAGO—(AP)—The 1938 National Professional Football league race is only three weeks old, but in time that the revitalized Philadelphia Eagles have flown out of the fledgling class into championship consideration.

Eastern division standings today showed them second to Washington's pace setting defending champions.

One setback, 26 to 23, came in their inaugural game against Washington. Since they walloped Pittsburgh, 17 to 7, and yesterday gave New York's Giants their first spanking of the year, 14 to 10.

Andy Farkas, former Detroit university star, and Bill Hartman, former University of Georgia ace, led the champion Redskins to a 37 to 13 triumph over Cleveland's Rams yesterday.

At Milwaukee, Cecil Isbell, 1937 Purdue star, threw and received passes which led to three Green Bay touchdowns as the Packers defeated the Chicago Cardinals, 28 to 7.

In last week's other game, Pittsburgh capitalized on errors Friday to defeat Brooklyn, 17 to 3, for its first win of the season.

Coals Bow In Opener

Blocked Punt Proves Costly To Kallmerten-Baer Team, Loses 12 to 6.

By CHARLES MARTIN

THE Kallmerten and Baer semi-pro grid machine ran into a snag as it raised the curtain on its 1938 season at League park Sunday.

Sporting a lineup studded with former Mansfield and Ashland high school stars, the Coals gave indications of developing into a real power, although they bowed to the Pi Rho Phi club of Detroit, 12 to 6, before a fair-sized crowd.

Break Decides Issue.

Coach Gip Miller's men battled the heavier Detroit team on even terms for more than three periods before a blocked punt set the stage for the invaders' winning touchdown.

George Mays, subbing for Harper Au in the Mansfield backfield, provided the fans with the big thrill of the afternoon when he intercepted a Detroit lateral on his own 17 in the third period and out ran the entire Pi Rho Phi club to cross the enemy's goal and enable Mansfield to knot the score at 6-all. The club's chances of going ahead went "haywire" when Tony Schadek's placement for the extra point was wide.

Detroit's deciding marker came shortly after the opening of the final chapter after its forward wall broke through and blocked Vern Heiser's attempted punt on fourth down on the Coals' 10 as the third stanza ended.

Mansfield's line stiffened and it looked as though it would halt the drive, but on fourth down, Steiner, Detroit's principal running threat of the day, ploughed through the line from the two. Fender's kick for the point was low.

The Detroit club, practically the same team which defeated the Mansfield semi-pros last year, let loose with a deadly passing attack to jump into the lead in the opening minutes of the first period.

After an exchange of punts, the visitors started from their own 46 and reeled off a march that was climaxed when Anderson tossed a lateral to Yungling who fell into the end zone from the two with three Mansfield players hanging on. Fender's placement for the point was low.

The Coals suddenly came to life and twice smashed deep into Detroit territory only to lose the ball on downs. Once, near the end of the half, Mansfield penetrated to the invaders' six with the aid of a penalty, but lacked the power to go over

Stop Coals' Passes.

Mansfield choked off several Detroit threats by either intercepting or knocking down passes. Miller's outfit started heaving the ball all over the field in the fadinb minutes of the game in an effort to score, but Detroit's pass defense was up to the occasion.

Mike Miller, George Hummel and Sock LaRue were outstanding in the Mansfield line, while Mays, "Rabbit" Siler and Heiser carried the burden of the club's attack.

Langhurst Groomed for Injured Rabb's Post

COLUMBUS—(UP)—Beset by injuries at fullback and guard positions, Coach Francis Schmidt drove his buck gridders through stiff workouts today in preparation for the opening game Saturday against Indiana.

Johnny Rabb, first string fullback last year and one of the Bucks flashiest runners, was lost for the season when he suffered a torn knee cartilege in scrimmage Saturday. Dr. Walter Duffee, team physician, said Rabb would undergo an operation for removal of the cartilege later this week.

With his lone fullback veteran out, Schmidt groomed two sophomores, Jim Langhurst, Willard, and Al Zuchegno, Dover, both promising in early workouts, for the backfield post.

Rabb's loss and the presence on the ailing list of Nick Rutkay, Vic Marino and Peter Gates, the three letter candidates for guard, caused the dour-faced Buck coach to be more gloomy than ever.

Ed Hofmayer, a reserve guard last year, also was a doubtful starter, leaving the duties to Frank Smith, a junior reserve, and Bill Nosker and Jerry Spears, both sophomores. All of the guard cripples, however, will be available for some service Saturday.

Street Gets 'Can' as Bucs, Cubs Poise for Series That May Decide Title.

By SID FEDER

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THE Giants and Reds are out of the race; Hank Greenberg's home run record chances are dying; the Yanks keep on looking more like chumps than champs, and old Sarge Gabby Street has his honorable discharge papers from the St. Louis Browns. But all that's only incidental today.

Right now, it's the calm before the storm. The Cubs and Pirates tangle tomorrow in the start of a three-game "sudden death" series—and there you have your National league pennant, all wrapped up and addressed to the winner.

There's nothing on today's two-game big league program to take any attention from it. Even if the Cubs drop a decision to the Cardinals this afternoon, it won't make much difference. They'd still be only 2½ games back in the case, and they have to sweep the series to turn the trick anyway.

From this corner it looks like Peaceful Pie Traynor will have the pitching edge for the set. Pie had to use only Red the Rosebud Lucas to top his old cousins, the Reds, 5-3, yesterday, while Gabby Hartnett led with one-half of his Cub pair of aces, Clay Bryant, in whipping the Cardinals, 7-2. Thus, the bugs will have their entire staff, headed by Jim Tobin, Bob Klinger, Cy Blanton and Russ Bauers, to work in that order, each with four or more days' rest.

The race became a two-team affair yesterday when the Bucs bumped the Reds and the Boston Bees nipped the Giants twice, 3-2 in 11 innings and 4-3 behind the five-hit elbowing of old Milt Shoffner.

Red Sox Gain, Defeat Yankees.

OVER in the American league, the Yankees went winless again against the Boston Red Sox, dropping a 5-3 opener in ten innings and then fighting for a 2-all draw in the nightcap, which will be played off today.

The St. Louis Browns surprised everyone by clipping the Chicago White Sox, 7-2 and 8-4, with Buck Newsom posting win No. 19 in the opener. And as a "reward," the powers-that-be told Old Sarge Street he was through at the end of the season.

Hank Greenberg went homerless again, although he and his Detroit mates mauled the Cleveland Indians, 7-5. Big Hank now has seven more games to collect four homers to equal Babe Ruth's record.

The Dodgers and Phillies split a pair of 5-1 decisions in the other National league larruping, and the Athletics, after topping Washington 6-5 in their ten-inning opener, dropped the afterpiece.

Gordon Van-Tine Has Built Homes Since Civil War

For 72 years, dating back to Civil war days, the Gordon Van-Tine company has specialized in the building of homes.

Founded in Davenport, Ia., in 1865 by a young man named Uriah N. Roberts, the company has grown from a one-room shop until it now servec the greater part of the nation.

A skilled wood-worker, the founder established a building material factory in Davenport, where he discovered the finest lumber could be had and transportation was available at lowest rates.

Throughout the 72 years of its existence, the Gordon Van-Tine company has been solely and exclusively in the home building business.

To be certain of 100 per cent satisfaction in a new home, the company advises that every house should be planned by expert home planners and practical building engineers.

"No home can be built right that has not been planned right," is a Gordon Van-Tine byword.

The Van-Tine system offers the home-builder not only the services of the country's leading home planning experts, but takes over the job from the day the plans are approved by the customer until it is ready for occupancy.

"It is the only system that plans your home and builds it complete for you under one contract and at one guaranteed price," Harry A. Parker, Gordon Van-Tine representative for central Ohio says. Mr. Parker's offices are in the Walpark building.

Full Meal or Just Sandwich, Diners Have Answer

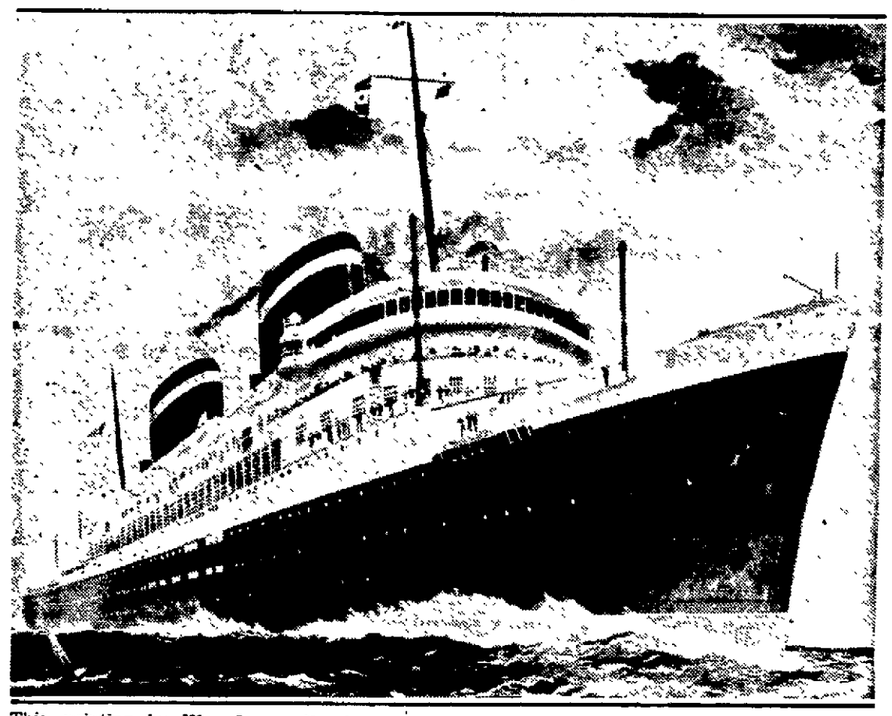
Everything in the food line is available at the Diners with emphasis being placed on quality, quick service and reasonable prices. These three factors have played important roles in the success of the Diners since they were founded and have won for them a steady patronage through the years.

In addition to plate lunches and dinners served both at noon and in the evening, the Diners have a wide selection of sandwiches, fresh vegetable salads, and various desserts featured by home made pie served in generous portions.

Both restaurants are open every day of the year, night and day.

A. D. McNew, founder of the original Diner on South Walnut street, manages the East Third street restaurant, while his son, Tom, who has been associated with him in business since he started, directs the Walnut street restaurant.

How New United States Luxury Liner Will Look



This painting by Worden Wood, famous marine artist, gives you an idea of how the new $15,750,000 luxury liner being built at Newport News, Va., for the United States Lines, will look when completed. The ship will replace the historic Leviathan, and be sister ship to the present luxury liners Manhattan and Washington in the North Atlantic service. She will accommodate 1,219 passengers, a crew of 639, be 723 feet in length, have a beam of 93 feet 3 inches, and her tonnage will be about 24,000.

Tax Revision On Docket After Fall Election

Directly after the November election, the house ways and means committee and the senate finance committee will begin discussing tax revision. According to Washington sources, the talks will focus on:

1—Enactment of a tax on the income from now-exempt securities and on federal and state salaries; 2—A careful survey which may lead to drastic revisions of the entire corporate tax structure; 3—Recommendations for additional payroll taxes to broaden social security coverage; 4—The boosting of taxes on middle-bracket incomes and; 5—Renewal of excise rates and fixing of processing rates to meet the larger-than-expected AAA benefit payments.

Present advices are to the effect that, notwithstanding the make-up or sentiments of the new congress, most of the above changes may be carried, some after bitter battles.

Utility Earnings Increase During Third Quarter

Preliminary reports point to third quarter utility net income within 8 per cent of the comparable 1937 level as against a 15 per cent gap between the 1937 and 1938 second quarter.

The hand-to-mouth policies of utility companies were strikingly illustrated in a recent S. E. C. report on the earnings of operating companies.

Owning 70 per cent of the assets of all registered holding company systems, these companies had a 1937 gross of $1.4 billion of which 12½ per cent or $181 million, was paid out in taxes. Thereafter, deducting depreciation reserves, bond interest and preferred dividend requirements, there was a balance of about 176 million.

Inventories Down, Production Hike Seen In Offing

According to a recent release by Dun and Bradstreet, the value of inventories in the hands of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers was reduced by $1,250,000,000 or 5.8 per cent in the first half of 1938. In 1936, inventories rose $2,269,000 and in '37, $3,000,000,000.

Manufacturers reported the greatest cut in stocks, 6.7 per cent; wholesalers' merchandise fell 5 per cent in value and retailers' inventories were reduced by only 3.6 per cent.

As a service to its customers, Mansfield Wallpaper will have any room measured to determine the numbers of rolls needed for papering. It also aids home owners in solving their decorating problem, advising them concerning the colors and patterns.

The DeMarce Novelty shop is now located in the Mansfield Wallpaper store and specializes in taking pictures which are required in applying for chauffeur drivers' licenses.

With the deadline for obtaining the new 1939 drivers' licenses Friday, chauffeurs are urged to have their pictures taken the early part of the week to avoid the usual last-minute rush.

TRADING NERVES JARRED BY NEW CZECH CRISIS

Losses Run to More Than Two Points Before Attracting Mild Support.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—New war fears hit the stock market today and leading issues fell fractions to more than 2 points before attracting mild support.

Prominent losers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, International Telephone, Anaconda, Kennecott, Westinghouse, General Electric, Du Pont, Johns-Manville, Eastman Kodak, Philip Morris, Owens-Illinois, Great Northern, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Standard Oil of N. J. and Texas Corp.

Trading nerves apparently were jarred by the latest German-Czech crisis.

Bonds were lower. Wheat futures tilted upward while cotton declined.

Analysts noted the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that, despite a leveling off of activity in some departments, various factors pointed to further moderate expansion in demand and production in the steel field before the autumn peak is passed.

At Pittsburgh some observers looked for a 60 per cent operating rate in October if orders from miscellaneous sources continue the current upward trend.

The American Iron & Steel institute reported employment and payrolls of the industry during the first half of 1938 were substantially higher than in the corresponding periods of 1934 and 1935 when operations were below 50 per cent of capacity.

DON'T LET YOUR NERVES GET TIRED, UPSET!

Irish Setter

Native of Ireland. Believed to be a cross of English setter, spaniel and pointer. Originally red and white in coloring. Today's standards call for solid mahogany red or rich golden chestnut. Essentially a gun dog. Bold, hardy, yet remarkably gentle nature. Noted for long life.

He's giving his nerves a rest...and so is she

THE DOG pictured above has a nervous system amazingly similar to yours, with this difference: It is the nature of the dog to rest when he needs rest. It is the nature of mankind to drive on...until nerves jerk and twitch...until you are cross and irritable... tired out without knowing it. No matter which of the common forms of tenseness you feel, try this experiment: Ease up and enjoy a Camel. Camels are made from costlier tobaccos. They are so mild and comforting. Smokers find that "Let up—light up a Camel" puts more zest into life, and that Camel's costlier tobaccos soothe their nerves.

MILLIONS FIND
"Let up—light up a Camel" puts more joy into living

Terrell Jacobs, lion trainer, and "Tony" Concello, circus aerialist (right), both testify to the value of "Let up—light up a Camel." "Animals can spring into instant action—then relax," says Jacobs. "We are apt to get our nerves all wound up with our tense way of living—can't let go. I find that Camels soothe my nerves." "Terrell's right," Miss Concello says "When my nerves are tired, a Camel helps them to rest."

DID YOU KNOW: —that one tablespoonful of tobacco seed will sow 100 square yards? Right down to the day of harvest, Camel tobacco experts watch the development of the crop in each locality. The Camel cigarette buyers know where the mild, choice, aromatic tobacco is, and buy accordingly

Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic

Fred L. McDaniel, cowboy (right), says "When I feel nervous I let up, and light up a soothing Camel Camels are mild—I smoke 'em steadily. They are so comforting, and never tire my taste."

Smoke 6 packs of Camels and find out why they are the LARGEST-SELLING CIGARETTE IN AMERICA

AFRAID TO MARRY + + +

By HELEN WELSHIMER

(Copyright, 1938)

READ THIS FIRST:

Judy Rogers, New York heiress, is stunned when Craig Denby, the man she loves, tells her on the phone that he has married a girl he met at a week-end house party. Afraid of marriage, Judy reflects she put Craig off once too many times. Then she phones her father's lawyers to learn the details of his financial crash, just announced in the newspapers, and talks with Ronald Birrell, a brilliant young attorney from Tennessee who has just joined the firm. Ronald both angers and fascinates Judy, doubting that she has the stamina to remain in New York and make her own way designing dresses which she says she likes to do.

CHAPTER 3

AT RONALD BIRREL'S remark that she did not have enough stamina to fight her way in New York, Judy's anger mounted. After all, this red-headed young man with the clear blue eyes and funny grin had no right to dictate to her.

She spoke swiftly: "I think you are the most impudent, brazen, unmannerly man I've ever met. I'll do what I choose to do. Mr. Heaton doesn't ask you to dictate to his clients as to how they shall live. Anyway, what business is it of yours what I do? If you want the truth, I loathe the social racket. But I'm sticking with it!"

Then she walked out of the restaurant, down the street. For a second or two she thought he might follow her. She almost wanted him to. But he didn't. She glanced over her shoulder a time or two but there was no hurrying figure with a red head, coming to overtake her.

She walked—miles. It seemed. Her anger faded. The day grew warmer. She took off her hat and let the breeze stir her curls. She did not realize how far she had come until she saw the blue waters of the Battery in the distance.

Ships were setting out to sea. Craig would be going past the Statue of Liberty in a boat pretty soon. Craig and a girl named Mary Banner.

She wondered what the girl looked like. Was she a glittering blonde, a ravishing black-haired creature—or just a girl with brown hair and eyes, as she herself was?

Not that it mattered. She had captured Craig. Captured, Judy told herself, was the right word Otherwise how could a young man, vowing eternal love to one girl, marry another in so short a time? Or—maybe he had captured Mary

It didn't matter. The marriage was completed.

"I won't know about Mary for a long time," she said half aloud. "Not until it doesn't hurt to realize that Craig is hers. Maybe that time won't come. Maybe I'll always watch for him. Maybe he loves Mary terribly and I was a habit. Maybe—I'd better get a job!"

A newsboy stopped in front of her. "Paper, lady? Another big shot takes the gate."

"Who is it this time?" she asked quite as though she didn't know. She wanted her mind distracted from the other problem.

"Rogers. A baron in the Street Say—" the boy gave a whistle of surprise. "You look almost like the old man's daughter. See?" He showed Judy her own picture on page one. "Only not quite so pretty. That Rogers' dame is a looker."

"Yes, she is," agreed Judy. Her pictured face was gay, happy, unworried. Her real face was haggard and hurt and white, she knew.

"Keep the paper—it's a present because you look like the girl She'll have to hustle for a job now."

Judy stood quietly when the vendor had gone. Well, why not get a job? Once she had wanted to, believing she was rich. And now—

She glanced at the tall buildings that stood so austerely against the afternoon sky. There were girls in the offices, girls who were earning their own livings because they had to. Brave and fearless, even when they were a little frightened in the far corner of their hearts. She would join them. She would show Ronald Birrell.

So she caught a subway train and went home. The penthouse apartment was quiet. She went into her own room and sat down at her resk. She would cable her mother that she was not coming, and take the passage money as a fund to help her live while she searched for a job. Maybe she could model—she was a perfect 14. From that it would be just a step into dress designing, she hoped.

The maid had placed some letters on a silver tray. A yellow envelope topped them. A cable. She ripped it open.

"Planning winter in Egypt. Impossible have you join us. Sorry about everything."

It was signed "Edith Rolland"

So her mother didn't want her. She did not care enough to sign some maternal term to the message. Just "Edith Rolland", as though she were a person and Judy were a person, and they never had meant anything to each other.

Well, there would be no passage money. She would tell her father, and he would loan her a little, a very little, if he had it.

But he did not have it, although he would have found it had she asked. It was after dinner that Judy intended to show him the cabled message. They were having coffee in the drawing room, for the September night had turned too cool for the terrace, when he said:

"Judy, I'm glad your mother is taking her with you this winter. Our reverses need not interfere with your gaiety. As for me—I'd finance you here, if you prefer, if I had two coins to rattle together But the bank's empty."

He walked to the long windows that opened on the terrace, was silent for a moment, came back. His quick, brilliant smile was not for Judy, waiting hungrily for a word of affection. It was for his wife, but she did not return it. Instead Judy's stepmother shook her head.

"Bob, how did you make so many dumb mistakes?'

"I thought I was being bright. Don't worry about it. It will come out all right." Even now his eyes adored his wife.

Judy turned away her head. It wasn't fair. This stepmother had taken, taken, taken! She owed her husband sympathy and, understanding, unspoken forgiveness of matters that were beyond her comprehension. But her father did not seem to mind—

Now Ronald Birrell would have been hot-headed and demanding. His wife would have to walk with him all the way. But it would be fun for her, if she loved him . . . Silly to think about that now. Also, it would be a brave girl who could love that tempestous attorney.

The stepmother was speaking again. Her name was Sarita. She was beautiful and much younger than her husband. Now she smiled, and Judy's tight heart expanded.

"I'm sorry I'm such a brutally frank person, Bob. I'm standing by. Don't forget."

"I won't," promised the tall man with graying hair. He seemed to be a stranger now, as Judy looked at him. Not her father, Sarita's husband. She stirred restlessly. The movement attracted the man's attention. He finished his coffee, and put down the cup.

"How soon can you sail, Judy? The Normandie pulls out day after tomorrow."

No good to tell him that her mother didn't worry her. It would add to his worries. He was in such a hurry to have her leave. Under the lavendar chiffon flounces of her dinner frock she heard the yellow paper of the cablegram crackling. He would not know that she had this mesage.

"You see, Judy, I'm taking Sarita west with me to try to recover a venture. One woman is all I can manage this winter. In the spring . . ."

"Yes, of course, in the spring," she agreed, with a forced smile.

Sarita was eyeing her speculatively. "Maybe Judy will want to marry. What about Craig?"

"Craig is married," she repeated steadily, because she had been saying the words, over and over, to herself all day.

"Married? When?"

"Last night. To Mary Banner, the radio entertainer. Craig and I never were serious. Mind if I excuse myself and go to my room? You must have lots of plans to make."

Lots of plans, and none of them would include her. But she didn't stay inside. She put on a white polo coat and went down the street to a newsstand Maybe Craig's marriage was in the morning tabloids, already on sale.

WHEAT WEEVIL PERILS GAIN

Farmers Warned of Invasion Of Insects, Urged to Use Fumigants.

Richland county farmers were warned today against an invasion of their grain bins by the wheat weevil which is reported to have infested a number of farms in Ohio and a few in the Richland county area.

Millers urged the use of proper fumigants, or a gas heavier than air, to combat the weevil which will ruin an entire wheat crop in three or four months unless measures are taken to destroy the insects.

Treatment with fumigants which may be obtained from most millers and grain dealers, will save the wheat at a cost of one or two cents per bushel, T. J. Hanley, president of the Hanley Milling company said.

"We are getting reports of isolated cases of weevil infestation in and near Richland county, but by acting now farmers can save thousands of dollars," he asserted.

The weevil is said to destroy wheat as termites consume wood and in a short time will eat the grain or make it unfit for flour making.

U. S. JOINS IN PEACE APPEALS SENT GERMANY

Roosevelt Sends Message to Hitler; British Envoy Speeds 'Last Stand.'

berlain's personal message to Hitler.

Sir Horace — sometimes called the prime minister's one-man brain trust and sometimes his "office boy"—was with Chamberlain at the dismal parting from the Fuehrer in Godesberg last Friday midnight.

With Chamberlain, he rode up the Petersberg mountain along the Rhine in the early hours of Saturday with Hitler's ultimatum to Czechoslovakia—cession of her Sudetenland by next Saturday, Oct. 1.

Britain, of course, kept secret what Sir Horace was taking back to Hitler now that the Czechoslovaks seem certain to reject the Note's Possible Contents.

But there were these reported possibilities:

1. A fervent appeal to Hitler to leave the door open to peaceful settlement.

2. Suggestions for an alternative to the ultimatum which would let Hitler show his troops to some part of Sudetland and yet prevent certain strangulation of the rest of Czechoslovakia.

3. A flate notice that Britain and France would not push Prague into acceptance of the ultimatum.

4. A plain statement that German war on Czechoslovakia was certain to bring the western democracies into action against Germany—ultimately if not immediately.

The message to Hitler, who later today is to address "the entire reich," was set before the French statesmen left London and shortly after President Roosevelt's appeal to the fuehrer was divulged.

Comminique Issued.

Announcement that it had been sent came as French Premier Daladier, Foreign Minister Bonnet and French Ambassador Charles Corbin left the prime minister's residence and before the full British cabinet session started.

After the meeting between British and French ministers, the following comminique was issued.

"A further meeting was held this morning between British and French ministers, at which full accord was established on all points.

"General Gamelin (Maurice Gustave Gamelin), French chief of staff who had been called over for special consultations, also called on the prime minister and subsequently had an interview with the ministers for coordination of defense."

General Gamelin did not accompany the French ministers when they left 10 Downing street, but remained for further conferences.

Although there was no immediate interpretation of the nature of Chamberlain's letter, some quarters believed a demand by Winston Churchill, one of Britain's elder statesmen for a belligerent stand against possible aggression by Hitler might indicate the contents

The press association (British News Agency), which frequently is a mouthpiece for the foreign office and other government departments, stated:

"One official opinion in London was that the new 'personal communication' which the prime minister now has sent to Herr Hitler contains an elaborate alternative set of proposals to those which Herr Hitler was put forward for solving the Czech problem."

Get Czech Answer.

The Czechoslovak reply to Germany's memorandum containing "final terms" for a settlement was conveyed to the foreign office by Minister Jan Masaryk last night and the cabinet undoubtedly received the document during the morning meeting, which adjourned at 1:10 p. m. (7:10 a. m. EST).

Official sources declined to say whether Wilson was taking the Czechoslovak reply with him, but there were strong indications that he was doing so

As to what else he was taking there was only speculation.

Generally, however, close observers believed he was charged with delivering not only a British-French refusal to support Hitler's new ultimatum for German military occupation of large, strategic areas of Czechoslovakia, but also some new proposals.

This might meet the fuehrer's insistence on military occupation of the Sudetenlands in some limited manner—in exchange for guarantees which so far the German leader has not agreed to give.

Officials declined comment on President Roosevelt's appeal because of its personal nature. However, their gratitude was evident.

Crowds Stand In Rain.

In addition to gas mask fittings and other air raid precautions, crowds of quiet people standing in the rain in Whitehall saw big trucks carrying orange-colored gas cylinders and other equipment for the balloon barrage—the network of balloons and cables designed to protect London from bombs.

Presumably the evuipment was being moved to strategic depots.

Gamelin's intensive consultations with the British ministers and defense chiefs were carried out according to plans made April 29, when Britain and France tightened their military accord.

Although these defense arrangements naturally were secret, it was widely reported they envisaged British command of the combined naval forces and French command of both the armies and air forces, with French bases being used for Britain's new long range bombers and swift fighting planes.

Some time after the ministers departed from Ten Downing street it was learned that no further meeting was arranged for today. This was taken to mean their final decision was in the hands of Chamberlain's envoy to Hitler.

Praises Roosevelt.

Among comment on President Roosevelt's appeal was that of the Evening Star, liberal, which said

"Across the Atlantic Herr Hitler's strange, self-destroying power has awakened the voice of the United States.

"It was that power which cast the die against Germany in the last war.

"In the letter of President Roosevelt, worthy successor of Abraham Lincoln, Herr Hitler is invited, as we all are, to consider yet again the ways to pleace."

Sir Horace went to Berlin in his capacity as personal advisor to Chamberlain.

That fact emphasized the personal nature of the communication. Sir Horace also is chief industrial advisor to the government.

His departure followed on reliable information that Czechoslovakia and the French government had held unacceptable Chancellor Hitler's demands that Sudetenland be returned to Germany by Oct. 1—because the territory demanded virtually would cut Czechoslovakia in two, take from her vital resources and cost her free control of railroads.

The British cabinet and the French statesmen discussed the crisis at length yesterday, and today resumed their discussions, including joint military preparations

Butler Predicts Hitler Will Postpone Czech Invasion.

FAYETTEVILLE, W. Va.—(UP)—Smedley D. Butler, retired U. S. marines brigidier-general, told a gathering of 3,500 ex-service men at Beckwith, Sunday, that Adolf Hitler will find "some excellent reasons why he should postpone invasion of Czechoslovakia."

Hitler has been trying to keep his people's minds off conditions in Germany, Butler said.

Butler contended that the United States is safe from invasion, pointing out that it would require 1,000,000 men and all the ships now afloat in the world to make such invasion effective.

HERE'S TEXT OF U. S. NOTE SENT HITLER, BENES

Roosevelt's Message Points to Consequences of War, Urges Negotiation.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The text of President Roosevelt's message to Chancellor Adolf Hitler and President Eduard Benes follows:

The fabric of peace on the continent of Europe, if not throughout the rest of the world, is in immediate danger. The consequences of its rupture are incalculable. Should hostilities break out the lives of millions of men, women and children in every country involved will most certainly be lost under circumstances of unspeakable horror

The economic system of every country involved is certain to be shattered. The social structure of every country involved may well be completely wrecked

The United States had no political entanglements. It is caught in no mesh of hatred. Elements of all Europe have formed its civilization

The supreme desire of the American people is to live in peace, but in the event of a general war they face the fact that no nation can escape some measure of the consequences of such a world catastrophe.

The traditional policy of the United States has been the furtherance of the settlement of international disputes by pacific means. It is my conviction that all people under the threat of war today pray that peace may be made before, rather than after, war.

Recalls Pact of '28.

It is imperative that peoples everywhere recall that every civilized nation of the world voluntarily assume the solemn obligation of the Kellogg-Briand pact of 1928 to solve controversies only by pacific methods

In addition, most nations are parties to other binding treaties obligating them to preserve peace. Furthermore, all countries have today available for such peaceful solution of difficulties which may arise, treaties of arbitration and conciliation to which they are parties.

Whatever may be the differences in the controversies at issue and however difficult of pacific settlement they may be, I am persuaded that there is no problem so difficult or so pressing for solution that it cannot be justly solved by the resort to reason rather than by the resort to force.

During the present crisis the people of the United States and their government have earnestly hoped that the negotiations for the adjustment of the controversy which has now arisen in Europe might reach a successful conclusion.

So long as these negotiations continue so long will there remain the hope that reason and the spirit of equity may prevail and that the world may thereby escape the madness of a resort to war.

On behalf of the 130 millions of people of the United States of America and for the sake of humanity everywhere I most earnestly appeal to you not to break off negotiations looking to a peaceful, fair, and constructive settlement of the questions at issue

I earnestly repeat that so long as negotiations continue, differences may be reconciled. Once they are broken off reason is banished and force asserts itself.

And force produces no solution for the future good of humanity.

(Signed) Franklin D Roosevelt.

PLEAS FAIL TO MOVE HITLER

Berlin Hears He Won't Make Direct Reply to Roosevelt; Speaks This Afternoon.

Already at the chancellory or arriving in his wake were Hitler's highest military aides—the men who will issue the orders to Germany's armies in the field if hostilities occur.

They included General Wilhelm Keitel, army chief of staff, Admiral-General Eric Raeder, commander-in-chief of the battle fleet, Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering and all the other bemedalled officers destined to fill the shoes of Hindenburg and Ludendorff if Germany once again is pitted against the world in what President Roosevelt described as the "madness" of war.

Sir Horace is bringing with him not only Chamberlain's message but what Berlin termed a "demonstrative counter-argument" from Prague. In reply to questions concerning the new British mission and Germany's reaction to President Roosevelt's appeal, a spokesman had this to say:

"Official comment is being withheld The Fuehrer's speech tonight will answer all questions."

It was pointed out, however, that Mr. Roosevelt's message centered on a plea that negotiations be permitted to continue as the only guarantee against outbreak of hostilities. A source close to the chancellory then authorized International News Service to present the following as an authoritative exposition of Germany's immovable attitude:

"The memorandum (Hitler's final terms demanding German occupation of all the Sudeten areas by October 1) stands. It covers everything.

"Its principles were agreed upon by England, France and Germany. And consented to by Prague.

"Allegations that the Fuehrer altered his territorial demands in his last meeting with Mr. Chamberlain at Godesberg are untrue.

HOLDS REMOVAL OF FOREIGN AID WOULD END WAR

Spain's Loyalist Premier Says Peace Would Return Within 3 Weeks.

By JAMES L. MILLER

(Copyright 1938, by United Press)

GENEVA—Premier Juan Negrin of loyalist Spain told me today that if foreign troops were withdrawn from the insurgent side the loyalist government could re-establish order throughout Spain in two or three weeks.

The premier, who created a recent sensation in the League of Nations by announcing his decision to send out of Spain unconditionally all foreign troops in loyalist armies, rejected any suggestion of foreign mediation between his government and the insurgents, and expressed his firm conviction that loyalist victory is inevitable.

Asked whether he thought Generalissimo Francisco Franco would follow the loyalist lead by sending away his foreign aid, Negrin replied:

"Franco cannot send out the Germans and Italians even if he wants to. They won't let him."

"We are certain that two or three weeks after withdrawal of foreigners from Franco's side, the rebellion would be finished," Negrin said. "If the Germans and Italians actually were withdrawn, it would perhaps be necessary for us to send help to Burgos and Salamanica to reestablish order there and to save some people who are responsible for the rebellion."

Mediation Impossible.

Asked about reports that the Spanish conflict might be settled by foreign mediation, the premier replied that there could never be mediation between "the Spanish government and rebels."

"We have, of course, sought mediation by the League of Nations between Germany and Italy and the Spanish Republic," Negrin said, "but how can there be mediation between the legally constituted, democratically elected government and rebels? That is an internal affair."

We then considered the possible consequences of a Fascist victory in Spain.

"It is a misconception to see the problem in the future as a struggle between democracy and Fascism," Negrin said. "At present of course it is a struggle between Spanish democracy and certain Fascist powers. But for the future this is not the case.

Fascism may last five years, 50 years or 100 years; its character may change, but what will not change is German and Italian imperial domination of lands they have conquered. Triumph of the Fascists now would mean the disappearance as great powers of the western democracies. What the Spanish, the British and the French peoples must see is that it would mean the triumph of new German and Italian empires and the end of the British and French empires."

Negrin made clear, however, that he did not believe Fascism would triumph in Spain.

Hurricane and Floods Join In Putting Terrifying Climax On Groups' Vacations.

and the mountains were covered by clouds. We decided to stop for an hour or so at Franconia National forest, still unaware that we were in the flood district. As we left the road and entered the park we heard a thunderous rushing of waters. The men thought there might be a falls near us and went to investigate. (The Harold McKinleys of Cleveland, were with us.) They came back in a few minutes and said that we'd better get out of there immediately as the Gale river was on a rampage. Whole trees, 75 feet tall were being carried down the raging stream.

We started toward Franconia Notch, plowing through water over the roads that came up to the hubs. We were turned back with the information that the Notch was impassable. We went back to Twin mountains and were told that all roads were closed because of washouts or bridges out.

Cars were going back and forth like the proverbial headless chickens. People were excited. It seemed impossible that we had been trapped in less than two hours. We decided to "hole in" at the hotel and wait until the flood subsided, whether it was hours or days.

At 4:30 p. m. a sharp wind came up. The young silver birch trees around the hotel began to bend in the middle under the wind. At 6:30 the electric power went out. We lighted candles. The wind sounded like a continuous roll of deafening thunder and its roar in the great stone fireplace sounded like a barage of heavy guns.

Every time the door was opened to admit a refugee, the rugs were ripped off the floor, the candles went out and the window draperies screeched to the other side of the rods. Two Angora cats got into a screaming fight in the middle of the long living room and scared the daylights out of us.

A woman came in with a broken shoulder. She and her husband operated a mountain resort and the roof had been blown off and the walls collapsed on them. She was storming at him for leaving a roll of money—all they had—back in the ruins. "Gosh, honey," he said, "I was lucky to get out with my life. That's certainly worth more than the money, isn't it?" "Well," she answered with appalling truthfulness, "the money was something substantial to cling to." It was the only time I felt like snickering.

For five hours we sat with our heavy coats and pocketbooks in our hands, ready to rush to the cellar if the roof should go. Heavy objects were slamming against the building. But it was so dark we couldn't see a thing. One elderly woman, nervously walking the floor, said: "I've lived in these mountains for 27 years and I've never seen anything like this."

About midnight the worst of the hurricane subsided and some of us went to bed. In the morning we saw a strange world, drenched with sunlight. It was as if some mischievous giant had gone on a rampage. Not a tree was standing upright. The largest, the maples, the elms and the pine trees had been torn out by the roots, while the younger, tougher trees, stripped of every leaf, were leaning, or bent to the earth. Barns and outbuildings were demolished; tourist cabins were turned over; the mountains which had been so colorful the day before with scarlet, gold, bronze and the light green of the birch trees, were stripped of every vestige of color and only the bare branches and the dark green of the pines could be seen. Through field glass we saw that the mountains were covered with fallen and broken trees.

We started at noon on Thursday to find a way out of the flood district. We turned back many times, but finally found a temporary bridge at Littleton. The devastation was indescribable. Every little town had turned out to cut a path through the fallen trees that littered the roads; at Brandon, Vt., the main street had collapsed, leaving a six-foot chasm through the town; asphalt paving had been ripped off the roads like dead skin, and lay over in fields; gasoline pumps were demolished in many places, flood waters spread everywhere. Rutland had been under nine feet of water.

But we could get little information on the extent of the damage or the loss of life as there were no telegraph or telephone wires. In fact we traveled across New York state to Binghamton before I could find a telegraph office that would take a mesage. It wasn't until we read the New York papers there that we learned of the tidal wave and the extent of the hurricane. It will be days, probably weeks before the list of dead is completed.

After the danger is passed, it's the little annoyances you remember. I'm still indignant because there was "water, water everywhere" in New Hampshire and not a drop to drink and none clean enough to scrub the teeth or face.

McKinley, former member of The News-Journal staff, summed it up neatly that night with: "Take a tour with the Williamses and go nuts."

WRECKED CAR, ARREST, UPSETS YOUTH'S PLAN FOR BANK HOLDUP

A fantastic plan for a bank hold-up — that went awry when the car they had stolen was wrecked—was in the hands of police at Sandusky today, the result of the arrest of a Mansfield youth and his Columbus cousin last Friday.

The two youths, Robert G. Farrow, 20, Mansfield, and his cousin, Kenneth Huber, 26, Columbus, were being held under $5,000 bond for the Erie county grand jury on charges of armed robbery.

That charge was placed against them following their arrest in connection with the robbery of a Sandusky man, who told police two youths had forced him to drive into the country, at the point of a gun, and had robbed him of $5, thrown him out of his automobile and driven away in it.

Police later found the wrecked car, and said they arrested Huber, standing beside it with a gun in his hand. Later they picked up Farrow, at a cottage at Bay View. In his car, they said, was a sawed off shotgun. A third youth, against whom no charge has yet been placed was found in the cottage, in which there were also two loaded revolvers.

After lengthy questioning, Sandusky police today announced that they had obtained signed confessions from Farrow and Huber that they had planned to steal the car from which they threw the owner after robbing him to rob the bank at Castalia, a small town southwest of Sandusky. Police said they found a road map in the car, with a route traced from Sandusky to Castalia, and said the youths told they they had mapped a route from Castalia to the Bay View cottage, where they intended to abandon the stolen care after the robbery, returning to Mansfield in their own automobile.

But the fact that they wrecked the stolen car soon after the robbery undid all their plans.

At noon today, neither Farrow nor Huber had been able to supply the bond of $5,000, set by Justice of the Peace Carl Arheit, and were being held in jail at Sandusky.

Charles J. Brown, 266½ North Diamond street, charged with a similar offense will be arraigned Wednesday. He was released today on $500 bond. Charges were filed by Kermit Topper, Ashland, following a collision on Newman street, Saturday.

Lowell Walters, Jacktown, Licking county, pleading guilty to a charge of careless and reckless driving was fined $20 and costs.

Walters was arrested Saturday by sheriff's deputies who charged that he had clipped off six mail boxes at the side of the road on route 13, one mile south of the city.

Milo M. Meeker, Ashland was given a $50 fine with $40 suspended when he pleaded guilty to operating a motor vehicle with license plates issued for another. He was arrested by state highway patrolmen on U. S. route 42 north of Mansfield.

Purple Leads Color Parade For Autumn

Autumn and winter 1938-1939 will go down in history as the seasons when color went on a rampage, doing its best to give black a holiday. This trend to color in daytime dresses is front page material, and must be played up as such. Color is a MUST.

Paris is back of all this accelerated color interest.

Color has a new urge—in crepes, in velvets, in velveteens and in woolens.

Purple Best.

Purple is one of the most important color families for autumn and winter, with violet, grape, plum and mauve all scheduled for promotion.

The violet reds, rusty reds, King's red and Florentine red are all shades of the season. The importance of wine reds, berry reds, flower reds will carry them through the winter when warm, glowing shades are in demand, and they fit into country house life as well as gay restaurants and cocktail rooms.

For further color variety include the blue shades, slated for greater acceptance as the season advances—the violet blues, stained glass blues, fog and mist blue, Picasso blue, a bright shade with a new sound. These blues are essentially town colors, to wear with silver jewelry, with Persian lamb, mink or squirrel coats.

Don't overlook the brown shades, in woolens and crepes for town and in velveteen for the college crowd. Enliven brown dresses with spicy rust accessories and gold jewelry. The yellow browns, amber, golden and caramels are all recommended.

They're Talking About Florida Clothes Already

Possibly it's too early to talk about winter resort fashions, but smart scouts are already wondering what the south-bound miss and matron will tuck in her trunk. If you want to be a jump ahead of everybody remember that sheer crepes with a waffle weave effect will be tops for resort daytime dresses and blouses for linen suits.

Crease-resistant linens in a lighter and more refined variation are tops. Smoky tones of green or rich glowing colors are best. For formal town wear linen and silk mix it up to form an even weave fabric.

Next summer's slacks and skirts will be made of spun rayon mixtures which include such fabrics as hopsacking, ratine and suiting weights. Misty colored line tweeds in checks and plaids are jacket and suit pets. And around your middle (we hope it's a slim one) you'll be putting 17-inch wide striped belts, or maybe you'll prefer them around your neck as some of the fair ones do.

Sweater-Skirt Idea in Dress

College and high school age daughters have long known the pleasure and comfort of sweaters 'n skirts. The fact that the younger miss and matron favor this type of attire has forced the alert designers and manufacturers to make a dress derived from the sweater idea.

These frocks, which are being featured throughout the country as the newest in fall attire, have borrowed from both the dress and from the sweater. The usual type has a shirred bodice reaching to the hip-line or a little lower. This bodice is belted. Some of the fabrics include wools, velvets and knits. The style is attractive for the long and slim sisters.

Veils Still Good

The sudden trend toward veils has continued right around the fashion clock. They are worn draped over the brim of a hat to shade the eyes, covering the face and hat entirely forming a snood at the back. Smartest news is matching gloves to the veil colorings.

Plenty of Shades

Somebody call Mr. Ripley, please. The report of one wholesale ribbon manufacturer sounds like an item for that gentleman's famous cartoons. This dealer has 346 colors in his autumn ribbon line. Of these 58 are blue, 24 wine, 48 green and 23 brown.

Two of the New Modes for Fall

Here is a new fall frock designed to go places after the clock strikes 4. It is made of wine colored velvet woven to resist crushing and fashioned with a softly shirred bodice. A gold braid and tasseled bracelet and necklace are worn with it.

Creed of Paris makes this black wool day dress with a vestee of gray, scarlet and black striped cravat silk. It has a braid-trimmed jacket to match, which transforms it into one of the fall's smart costume suits. The tall-crowned hat is black felt.

Here's News On New Shoes

What's news in shoes? Platforms and wine shades. From all sections of the country shoe buyers insist that these are the two main items of interest. Although the platform shoe (the one with the extra thick sole and two-lift heel) is the height of demand in the cities and fashion centers, it hasn't been taken up much in smaller towns.

With the combination of wines and black this season, many women have taken to one of the wine shades for shoes. Fabrics are high in favor too with suedes, doeskins and gaberdines being sought.

The almost unbelievable popularity of the platform shoe has made it the choice of many leading designers for spring and summer wear. Really the success of this type of shoe may be attributed to the fact that it is not only stylish and beautiful, but it is comfortable, which is a lot in its favor.

Youngsters Make Plaids Popular

Although manufacturers and merchants have tried valiantly for several years to get the public interested in plaids, it has taken the youngsters to really make plaid garments popular. It is reported in buying circles that school girls are requesting plaid frocks in cotton and spun rayons as well as in woolens.

This trend to the gay has indicated that plaids will continue in poularity this spring. Coatings and suitings in soft wools will probably be chosen by many who grow increasingly weary of black, brown or navy or the insipid early pastels.

Hoops Come Back For Formal Wear This Fall

Hoops, my dear—they're back. Wide-skirted crinolines, like those the Empress Eugenie wore, have appeared in a 1938 version on both sides of the Atlantic and set the fashion world aquiver. They are not so wide as the rustling skirts worn by Eugenie and the Civil War belles. Designers had to keep taxis and revolving doors in mind.

Hooped Petticoats.

Some have whaleback hoops (thirty to thirty-six inches wide) or horsehair bands inserted in the frock. By far the most, however, are designed to be worn over a hooped slip or petticoat, which when removed, brings the dress down to about the wide-skirted proportions women have been wearing at night.

Thus the same dress may be worn in two ways. It is not a loss on occasions when hooped skirts do not fit the picture and it conforms to the most important evening silhouette of the season—a trim-waisted profile with a full spreading skirt.

Nearly everything about those frocks—the rich, stiff fabrics, the design and the accessories worn with them—hints of the days of Victoria and Eugenie. Failles, satins, moires, brocades and velvets in plums, purples, rich reds, blues, greens, old ivories and pastels borrowed from the "mauve decade" make their spreading skirts. The bodices are smooth, the waistlines small, decolletages low and often off-shoulder, and many times accented by a cameo pin, a neckband or a locket.

Sleeves, short and puffed or softly crushed down to a point below the elbow appear in two-thirds of these hooped frocks to balance the very low decolletages and wide skirts.

Three more notes must be stressed as of fashion significance in the new evening mode. Color is of great importance. Embroideries or sequins, metals and mirrors and trimmings such as shirred velvet bandings are in the picture. Headdresses of flowers, jewels or colorful plumes are going to be worn.

'No' on Picture Hat

Did you think the picture hat was about to stage a come-back? So did a lot of other folks, but those who are definitely in the know on the subject of what should go to the head say "not." You'll wear the wee ones this autumn and winter. They stay on better in the windy sections of the country, and are certainly more comfortable with large coat collars.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1938.

Among America's unsolved mysteries is where the go-getters went.

It may be assumed that those 53 hidden taxes in a loaf of bread add nothing to its food value.

Natural law and economic law should get together. As matters stand, the bigger crop of anything you have, the less you get for it all.

The Red Cross Is Always Ready.

AS THE full toll of the hurricane that lashed the north-eastern part of the country became known to other sections, millions of Americans turned from the tragedy abroad to the tragedy at home. Here, however, the death and destruction were created by natural forces, not by man turning against his fellow man. And here, too, sympathy and courage rose at once to start the work of relief and reconstruction.

Every thoughtful American must feel deeply thankful that the country is always prepared to set its relief army to work at the first sign of trouble. Through its own nationally supported agent, the American Red Cross, the country can send clothes, medicine, doctors, nurses, food and all neccessary supplies and workers to the scene of any disaster. Membership dues gladly contributed to the Red Cross yearly by millions of Americans take care of most needs. In the far-reaching emergency caused by the recent hurricane, additional funds are needed and will be forthcoming from sympathetic and generous Americans.

The local chapters of the Red Cross, now asking for fresh funds, will find the money pouring in. There is tremendous satisfaction in contributing the means for such humane work.

Diplomatic Fallacy.

THE PEOPLE of The Netherlands are practical. Doubtless that is why observers there accepted promptly the idea that annexation of the Sudeten region by Germany was only a matter of time. The attitude, as revealed in press comment in Holland, seems almost hard-boiled. If this outcome is inevitable the sooner the fatal amputation is performed the better.

They sympathize with the Prague government, but they take a detached and dispassionate view of the situation. What is happening to Czechoslovakia, they think, may help to end certain illusions—the value of alliances and the seductive power of democracy—which the Netherlanders at least will not regret.

Independence, they say, is only safely founded on economic and political realities. Defensive or offensive alliances are chiefly trouble-makers.

The Dutch may be right. Balance of power may be outmoded as an international policy for either war or peace.

Balance of military power is certainly an outworn idea inherited from an older world. Economic power is the need of today. And it is based not on competition in arms but on co-operation in peace.

Cars Without Horns Soon.

PREDICTION is made that within a few years automobiles will not be equipped with horns—and that use of noise-making devices on motor vehicles will be prohibited by law.

Reason for this is that wherever use of horns has been abolished, or reduced to a minimum, accidents have decreased.

Students of public safety are in agreement that frequent, or prolonged, use of an auto horn is prima facie evidence of poor driving and low mentality.

Attempts to move traffic by horn-blowing gains classification in the lower brackets of moron, verging toward imbecility.

After-midnight horn-blowing when approaching intersecting streets in residence districts places the perpetrator at under 12-year intelligence.

Early-morning horn-blowing, usually in several short, sharp blasts to attract attention of someone inside the house when car pulls up in front, serves as its own explanation of why the offender fails to "make friends or influence people."

Continuous blowing of an auto horn, at any time or place, indicates either a mechanical defect or an intoxicated driver.

An interesting experiment, for a motorist of average intelligence, is to observe the number of days it is possible to drive safely without horn-blowing.

Rejected 'Isms.'

AMERICANS have long been known as "joiners," but a new high in this respect has been made by John Mathews Sweeney, of New York, who testified the other day before the committee on un-American activities.

Questioning revealed that this young man was a member of the Communist party and the German-American Bund at the same time. The joining urge was so strong in him that he was able to attend Communist and anti-Communist, Fascist and anti-Fascist meetings, impartially.

The experience seems neither to have hurt Mr. Sweeney nor helped the un-American groups. Although not asked about it, the witness volunteered this parting critical comment, "Both are no good."

That would be the verdict of any honest and intelligent American who really examined the theories of Communism and Fascism. They lack appeal for a believer in democracy who knows what the Bill of Rights is, and who values his own political and religious freedom.

Sensible Beauties.

WHAT is the great American beauty contest coming to? The 1938 "Miss America," selected at the annual Atlantic City pageant, is said by a fellow townsman from Marion not to be the "modern type." Her life isn't devoted to social activities and the pursuit of pleasure. She doesn't drink or smoke. She retires shortly after her evening dancing school classes end.

A year or two ago the chosen Miss America disappeared before the festivities were over. She had to go back to school.

Maybe Miss America does represent America, after all!

And soon they may be singing in California. "Every day will be Thursday bye and bye."

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — Two important things President Wilson brought out of the World war were: The League of Nations, now on the rocks, and independence for Czechoslovakia, now teetering on the brink.

Czechoslovaks proudly point out that as early as 1898, Wilson, writing on the Czech problem, coined a slogan used by them in their wartime quest for freedom. It was: "No lapse of time, no defeat of hopes, seems sufficient to reconcile the Czechs of Bohemia to incorporation with Austria."

That Wilson, during the press of wartime duties, could find time to champion their small cause, enshrined him as a Bohemian hero.

At the time of the outbreak of the World war, more than a million people of Czech and Slovak parentage lived in the United States. A large number were on farms in the Mississippi valley but thousands more were concentrated in the Pittsburgh steel area. All contributed generously to the Czech and Slovak expatriates in Paris who early began an active campaign for national freedom.

A War for Freedom.

IN 1916, President Wilson gave them major assistance when he called upon the belligerent nations to state their war aims as a possible basis for peace. One of the terms of peace the allies put forward was autonomy for subject peoples, with special reference to those in Austria-Hungary. That gesture gave the Czechs a sort of official standing. Their freedom became one of the objectives of the war.

In 1918 President Wilson acted again in their behalf. All during the first years of the war, Czechs and Slovaks, particularly the former, deserted the Austrian army whole regiments at a time. Czech units fought for the allies on the western front, in Italy and in Russia. It was the Russian contingent which drew special Wilsonian intervention.

The Russian revolution which ended that nation's participation in the war left these embattled Czech regiments stranded. They were not Russians, but neither could they return home, for Austria would have executed them as fast as they returned.

For the dual purpose of rescuing the Czechs and of forcing Russia back into the war, the United States, Japan and the Allies sent thousands of men into Siberia by way of Vladivostok. Ultimately thousands of Czech soldiers, after wandering more or less aimlessly about Central Russia, completed the strange Odyssey around the world from the Austro-German front, across European and Asiatic Russia, the Pacific ocean, the U. S. and the Atlantic, and took up fighting on the Western Front. Others continued stringing across this country four or five years after the war ended.

Wilson Their Champion.

AT THE peace conference Wilson's kindly feeling for the Czechs was even more evident. He sided with their demand for complete independence and had a large part in seeing that the nation was made big enough to give it some hope of economic existence. This meant merging of Czechs, in Bohemia, with Slovaks loosed from Hungary, as well as a contingent of Ruthenians once under Russia. It also included the Sudeten Germans.

Czechs and Slovaks in the United States, foreseeing conflict between their long-estranged kinsmen in the old country, drew up in Pittsburgh an agreement assuring adequate self-government for the Slovaks, who were numerically inferior to the Czechs.

Less success came of efforts to unite the German elements in the government. These latter voted for affiliation with Austria rather than with Czechoslovakia but the peace council found this unfeasible, geographically, and so Czechoslovakia was formed.

As Wilson well knew, this international baby was secure only so long as it had a patron. He saw such a patron in the League of Nations. As the league weakened, Czechoslovakia leaned more and more upon France for support.

"BULL'S" EYE!

The Human Side of the News

—By EDWIN C. HILL

THE Yale Institute of Human Relations puts on an interesting short turn in the news with this new drug that would make a mouse step right up and pop a cat in the nose. Its originators, Neal E. Miller and Richard T. Shallenberger, report that it makes a wallflower the life of the party. The once shy and silent dinner guest, taking a snifter as he parks his hat and coat in the hall, steps right into a conversational serve and return like Donald Budge in top form. The lamb doesn't lie down with the lion, he just boots him out of the way.

The Amateur Athletic association had better look into that. There might have to be a revision of all our sports codes, with a system of handicaps of yards, points, laps or rounds per ounce of stimulus.

It is well that the Yale Institute brought it out into the open. Just think what would have happened if they had saved it for the Yale football team! Some nice questions of ethics would be raised by the use of the drug. While doping the opposition is frowned upon even in this age of dubious morals, why shouldn't any contender dope himself in any way he chooses? Is there any sharp dividing line between sound diet and training, to build energy, and the use of a drug for the same purpose?

Yes — a sharp line indeed if you're talking about drugs as we have known them, and if you are concerned about your life and well-being. Scientists today, experimenting with bodily energies, are no apologists for drug addiction.

The Yale experimenters are working with glands. It is a comparatively new field in medicine, which already has passed quite a few miracles and which still has a long way to go. It is a simple statement of fact to say that they have pepped up laggards and that they have made sluggish, inept and fumbling persons into efficient human beings.

Endicrinology, like every other promising field of discovery and experiment, has been seized upon by quacks and sensationalists and distorted as a millenial achievement. Messrs. Miller and Shallenberger would no doubt insist that their studies of bodily metabolisms are still in the field of carefully guarded experimental techniques and that such inquiries still belong in the domain of pathology. If your carburetor is working all right and you're getting sensible mileage, I am sure they wouldn't advise you to start tinkering with it.

A ONE-MAN institute of human relations, who left a deeper impress on his age than any other man of his times, was a wan, shy almost transparent little man, always huddled up in two or three coats, even in warm weather, a man whom a gland doctor of today would chase with a butterfly net. He was Desiderius Erasmus, born in Rotterdam in 1466, one of the world's greatest humanists, a scholar of all Europe and of all time.

His concerns were identically those of the Yale Institute of Human Relations. World civilization was imperilled, as it is today. While he was a fervent evangel of the Holy Roman Empire — as many of our modern humanists have supported the League of Nations—this was because of his belief that humanity could be saved only by a world order; that the then evolving "sovereign states" would tear each other to pieces. But, aside from this, he kept "intellectually liquid," shunning all power groups, renouncing all reliance on force, refusing to join Luther in the reformation in an interchange of letters, amazingly modern and illuminating when read today.

In sum, he believed that a decent society would be made only by decent human beings, with or without a world order, and that morality, intelligence, creativeness and aspiration welled up mysteriously from the life stream and that if they were fostered in a world fraternity of men of goodwill, mankind would find its way out of darkness. Truly amazing was the light and learning he spread over Europe.

THE subject of "human relations" crowds our latter-day stage. We are deluged with books on physical and spiritual conditioning. There are a multitude of formulas by which you may become strong, courageous, happy and successful.

But, if you will run over in your mind the most effective men and women you have known, is there any among them who got that way by a formula? Physical weaklings, like Erasmus, become historic monuments of courage and prodigious achievement. A man with a cluttered desk, flouting all the laws of business efficiency, kicks out an amazing lot of work. Great literature and deathless names have come out of dirt, disorder and insolvency.

Intelligence, courage, creativeness seem to come, in the scriptural phrase, "like a thief in the night," and they may come to this man or that. And a little leaven leavens the whole loaf. Somehow these variants from mass dullness and quiescence seem to have been divinely implanted in the evolutionary scheme. The Yale Institute, plausibly, tries to mobilize them. But, as they build, their basic dependence will be on their raw material — they will make no bricks without straw.

Timely Editorial

Tooter Fined.

We completed here some time ago the publication of a gallery of Traffic Nuisances, running from 1 up to No. 43 or so, and including the weavers, the pushers, cataleptics and other and sundry idiots and strange fish that infest the traffic stream.

It is a comfort to learn that one notable in the lot has just been dealt with by constituted authority. In passing on the offense of an accused who drove up behind others at a busy intersection and blew his horn continually because those ahead did not risk life and property by barging out into cross traffic, a local court has said, "We have here a self-appointed director of traffic, entirely thoughtless in his attitude toward the rights of others, and extremely selfish in his driving conduct. The fine is $25."

Someone has remarked of this large and impatient class of motorist that though always in a hurry it does not appear to be a type whose time would be worth 50 cents a week. The court's action may deter others of the ilk, though we can not be sure. It may be a breed that must be civilized one by one.—Detroit News.

Young America Says—

Crippled Children Need Care.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

MARY'S amazed! And all set to start something—

For she has just learned that one of our most proud and prosperous states appropriates more than three times as much money for its sick cattle as it does for its crippled children . . .

And what Mary thinks of her beloved Wisconsin just now would fry eels! Yet maybe there's more to this story than you guess, youngster!

"I realize Wisconsin isn't alone in this," continues Mary. "Other states give even less to crippled children. But why should such conditions exist anywhere in a nation that boasts so proudly of her love for children? Think of the pitiful little mites everywhere, lying hopeless and neglected—WHILE HOGS AND COWS ARE GIVEN THE MOST SCIENTIFIC SERVICE! Surely this is a blot on all America!

"Were it in my power, every crippled child would know the comfort of happy, outdoor life, and be given every chance for complete recovery!"

Miss Mary J. Dallaguarda, 22,
Kenosha, Wis.
($10 prize winner)

There's a proof of real Americanism! Mary, herself, knows the bitter hurt of the "SHUT INS" and the "SHUT OUTS." Although a competent secretary, she is forced to take domestic service at any wage she can find.

Yet America isn't as indifferent or cruel to her young people as these facts would seem to prove. We're all caught in the chaos which inevitably comes when an old order changes to a new. And those crippled babies are innocent victims of the old fight between State and Nation . . . each party believing in its own right to rule the destinies of its unfortunate citizens. The federal government has largely won out with the hogs and cows . . . but the youngsters are still "NOBODY'S BABY." Some day we'll realize that suffering has no boundary lines—and we'll all unite in one common effort to help and heal. When that time comes—but not until—we'll have a right to call ourselves A CIVILIZED NATION.

"PATRIOTISM BEGINS IN THE HOME," says John. "GETTING ON WELL WITH ONE'S OWN RELATIVES AND FRIENDS IS THE FIRST LESSON IN GETTING ON WELL WITH YOUR NATION . . . THE FIRST STEP TOWARD LOYAL CITIZENSHIP.

"The man who gets on well in his FAMILY . . . who does his best in his COMMUNITY . . . who stands for progress in his STATE . . . that man will be a great asset in his NATION. Americanism isn't something we are taught. It is something we build in ourselves and establish in our family life. We pattern our national lives on our family lives. Unless there is loyalty and unity in the family, there cannot be loyalty and unity in the town or state or nation.

John Holder, jr.,—age 16.
San Antonio, Texas.
($10 prize winner)

I've heard weighty orations on America, son—but I doubt if I've ever listened to a finer one than your own simple words. And here are my congratulations, not only to you—but to the Someones who made such a grand job of Patriot John Holder, jr.

A PLAN THAT WOULD KILL THE SEEDS OF HATE AND DISCOURAGE WAR FOREVER"—that sounds like a large order. And Patriot Howard Grindle of Topeka, Kansas, who proposes it, admits that many may laugh at it—and that Messrs. Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin might pooh-pooh it entirely. But you'll have to agree it has points.

"Every nation claims to hate the thought of war. Yet, hourly war comes nearer. If they really want to junk war forever, here's the way. Start with Youth. Make war unthinkable to Youth by establishing a close and friendly companionship with the young people of all other nations. How? BY TURNING THE TOOLS OF WAR INTO THE MACHINERY OF PEACE!

"Take all the warships of all the nations, dismantle their guns, put in recreation floors for dancing and games and equip them with groups of young people from all nations to see the world . . . one group following another. Do the same with airplanes for shorter trips. Such groups would not only see the world but they would come to understand and love each other. Young people are naturally friendly. Barriers of hate and ignorance and greed would be broken down. War would become an obsolete savage custom.

"As for the unemployment caused by disbanding armies, ship yards, etc.—Let there still be an Army, BUT USE IT IN A PRODUCTIVE, NOT A DESTRUCTIVE WAY, fighting dust bowl hazards, earthquakes, floods, and many other things in the way of disaster. Let's forget about war, and LIVE Peace."

Howard Grindle—age 21,
Topeka, Kansas.
($5 prize winner)

A glorious dream, lad! Let's all write to H. G. and talk it over.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—A bit of an Indian summer reverie—flash-backs on a waning season; vignettes, reminiscences, and a few I-remembers from the notes of a New York reporter:

Luckiest day—June 14th . . . I found a $10 bill, the first "big" money I ever found. It was wadded in a crumpled and infirm brown envelope, with no identification at all, and whatever possessed me to pick it up I am unable to explain. It was in 44th street. But I did pick it up, and spent the $10 on a new panama.

Best books read — It suddenly occurs to me that the most interesting books I read this summer mostly were by women . . . They were books I'd like to own . . . One was "The Yearling," by Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings . . . Another "The Handsome Road," by Gwen Bristowe.

Most impressive performance—Sonja Henie skating before a packed, jammed, shrieking Madison Square Garden . . . That was the most exciting and amazing single event of the season . . . She reminds me of an angel on furlough from heaven.

BIGGEST thrill — catching my first walleye pike . . . He came out of the deep of the Sacadanga watershed, a streak of fighting, flaming color, just at dusk, after a hard day's fishing . . . I had never seen one . . . I was so excited I almost jumped out of the boat.

Most startling moment—when an artist, who is something of a screwball, gave me a private preview of some murals he had just completed, all razzing the department stores . . . The one that stunned me and knocked me dead was "Nude on the Escalator" . . . I told you he was a screwball.

Tenderest, most heart-warming scene in the theater—the drug-store scene in "Our Town" when The Boy and The Girl, over a couple of chocolate sodas, discover for themselves what the audience has known all along—that they are in love.

* * *

MOST gratifying experience—New Orleans! . . . I probably won't ever recover . . . at least, I hope not.

Most enjoyable nights — those long, summer nights spent under the papaya trees amid soothing melodies and lovely dancing girls in the Hawaiian room at the Lexington.

Disappointments — the N. Y. Giants, and a certain horse to whom I am not indebted for a new overcoat, a hat, and the rent.

Most macabre moment—seeing John Warde jump to his death from the 17th story of a New York hotel.

Lazy days—Invading Old Lyme, Conn., drowsing on the beach, stuffing on lobster, taking life easier than easy.

Pleasant memories — dining on a cool terrace under the hot, deep-starred skies at the Riviera —seeing Fred Astaire do the Yam —the two weeks I was sick (I can't get over having people wait on me).

In sum, it all adds up to the pleasantest summer I ever spent in New York. And now Fall's here . . . Well, I'm hopin'.

A Farmer's Diary

English Ivy.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I STOPPED at an old brick farm house that stood, tall and stately, well back upon an upward sloping lawn. Two great sheltering pine trees guarded the grass-grown pathway like sentinels. The gentle morning breeze whispered among the pine needles.

But what I had come to see was the climbing English ivy that covered both sides and back with a mantle of hardy green. Even beyond the eaves, and high along the sloping gables, I could see the pale green tendrils reaching like tiny fingers for a favored spot to cling to. Panes of the windows were obscured by stray, loose branches, that found no place to anchor on the glass.

How greedily its branches reach out and, in some strange way, dissolve the hardest substance and feed upon it. On close examination, I have seen smooth red granite pitted, the sides of glazed brick scarred, and in between, the solid mortar crumbled out.

I have never seen a house so high that, if given time, the ivy would not reach the top. This modest plant accepts the challenge of the proudest heaps that man can raise, and from its lowly bed it climbs skyward, ever toward the sunlight. It seems permanent and constant in its growth, as time itself.

It grips its host caressingly in long, slender arms, feeds for ages upon the chiseled sides, until frost and wind and rain heave the masonry apart, and it crashes from its mossy base. Then, like animals of prey that gloat upon their kill, the ivy creeps upon the shapeless pile of ruins and waxes fat, luxuriant, and even more graceful, as it reaches down deep into the vitals that made this structure strong and beautiful.

Yet English ivy is a gentle, useful plant. It hides decay with beauty. It gives the dead, unsightly spots of earth a fresh green growth of life again. It lays its slender virile stems across fresh wounds, that not even time itself could heal.

Preview of Autumn Favorites

By PAULINE SCHOFIELD
Ohio Fuel Gas Company Home Service Department.

Just a tantalizing bit of the full picture of foods to be served for fall. There is a recipe for roast duck with wild rice, a hundred year old recipe for Indian pudding, and a genuine Rhode Island Johnnycake. Behold, also among coming pictures a gorgeous plum aspic of deep, rich color, and as a star event, let's try serving a different dessert, angel food cake pudding or chocolate shaving cookies with a fruit cup.

Roast Duck With Wild Rice.

To prepare duck, pick feathers, cut head, wings and feet. Remove fuzz by rolling bird in hot paraffin, cool and scrape paraffin off with knife. Draw bird, wash carefully, dry, sprinkle with salt on inside.

¾ cup wild rice,
¼ cup diced carrots,
¼ cup diced onion,
¼ cup diced celery,
½ chopped green pepper,
½ teaspoon sage,
½ tablespoon salt,
1 egg,
1 tablespoon butter.

Wash rice in number of waters, until clean. Cover with water and let stand overnight. Heat rice and boil about five minutes. Drain and add the other ingredients. Stuff birds with dressing, sew, roll in flour, season, roast in oven about two hours and one-half or until tender.

Giblet gravy may be made by chopping the cooked hearts and liver and adding to gravy.

Baked Indian Pudding.

4 cups milk
1 egg, beaten
1 cup molasses
3 large tablespoons corn meal
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ginger
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon vanilla

Scald three cups of milk. Mix the egg, beaten, molasses, one cup of cold milk and corn meal, and remaining ingredients. Add to the scladed milk and cook over hot water until thick. Pour into baking dish and bake in slow oven two hours. Serve with cream or hard sauce.

Rhode Island Johnny Cake.

2 cups Kenyon corn meal*
⅔ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons sugar
About 2 cups boiling water
About ½ cup milk

Mix meal with salt and sugar, thoroughly scald with boiling water, then thin with the hot milk. Drop in spoonfuls on greased hot griddle, spread out thin, and fry until brown on both sides.

*This is white corn meal ground by the old-fashioned granite mill stones.

Colorful Linens for Luncheons

Prepare for fall luncheons by making a colorful table set with appliqued fruit decorations.

Plum Aspic.

4¾ cups plum nectar
3 tablespoons plain gelatine
Avocadoes or bananas
Mayonnaise

Use a mixture of plum juice and sieved pulp, which is obtainable in cans, already sweetened, otherwise prepare from the fresh fruit. The consistency should be like that of freshly extracted orange juice not strained.

Measure three-fourths a cup of this cold plum nectar, add plain gelatine and let soak. Add two cups of hot plum nectar, stir until disolved, then add two additional cups of cold plum nectar. Pour into a flot, square pan seven-eighths of an inch deep, let chill to become firm; unmould, and cut into squares measuring seven-eighths of an inch, thus making perfect cubes. Arrange in a bowl with pared avocades or peeled bananas, cut into cubes measuring five-eighths of an inch. Chill until serving time and pile thick mayonnaise in the center.

Angel Food Cake Pudding.

1 tablespoon butter
1 cup sugar
2 egg-yolks
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
Rind and juice of 1 lemon and 1 orange
2 egg-whites beaten stiff

Cream the butter and sugar, add egg-yolks, flour and milk, and grated rind and strained juice of lemon and orange. Fold in stiff-beaten egg-whites. Pour into a buttered pan. Bake thirty minutes in 350 degrees Fahrenheit oven. This mixture also may be baked in an unbaked pie crust for ten minutes at 450 degrees Fahrenheit; twenty minutes at 350 degrees Fahrenheit. In either method the top will be a cake, the bottom a pudding.

Chocolate Shaving Cookies.

1 cup shortening
¾ cup brown sugar
¾ cup white sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon soda dissolved in
2 tablespoons hot water
3 cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
8-ounce bar semi-sweet chocolate, shaved
½ cup chopped nut meats

Cream shortening, add sugars, eggs and beat well. Add remaining ingredients. Drop by spoonfuls on greased baking sheet. Bake in 350 degrees Fahrenheit oven about fifteen minutes. (Five dozen.)

Combinations For Fruit Cups.

Cubes of honeydew melon, seedless grapes and sections of orange.

Cantaloupe balls, diced pineapple and rubyettes.

Diced watermelon, thin slices of banana, fresh raspberries, mint leaves.

Honeydew (diced), pineapple cubes in ginger syrup, garnished with chopped Canton ginger.

Do not move bread dough after it begins to rise—it may fall. Put the dough in a spot that is out of drafts, cover with a cloth and leave it until it has risen.

Kitchen Hints

SAUCE FOR RICE

Add a few chopped ripe olives to regular tomato sauce for serving on hot boiled rice, hominy, macaroni or spaghetti. The combinations are suitable for either luncheon or supper serving.

If some of your table doilies and runners look washed out try tinting them some delicate shade to harmonize with your china. Light green makes a delightful ground for ivory or yellow china. For a really bold effect dye it red or blue and use it with your gray colored breakfast sets.

Scores From County to Attend National Dairy Show.

Scores of Richland countians are expected to attend the National Dairy show at Columbus during the week of Oct. 8, County Agent George B. Ganyard said today.

Ticket sales which have been in charge of 4-H clubs, Future Farmer chapters and vocational arts classes, have been brisk, indicating widespread interest in the annual dairy classic, the county agent asserted.

A contest in which ticket sellers competed for prizes has just closed, and tickets may now be obtained at the county agent's office at reduced prices, Ganyard said.

Raemelton farms, near Mansfield, will be one of the exhibitors of fine dairy cattle from this section.

GIRL, REARED IN OVERALLS, MATCHES FARM HAND'S WORK

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND—Gladys Edwards can plow, handle a team and pitch hay as well as any man.

Miss Edwards, 30, and small but rugged, works as a farm hand on Chagrin Valley farms, near here

She tills her own farm in her spare time Miss Edwards and her father, a paper-mill employe, live on the farm of five acres.

The farmer was plowing a furrow, but she stopped her team of horses long enough to give a terse account of her outdoor life Like an old farm hand (which she is in experience), she braced her feet on the plow pedals

She said that her father put her in overalls when she was a small girl. She has worn them ever since instead of dresses

"Dresses are clumsy silly things," Miss Edwards said.

"Why did I take up farming? I don't give a hoot for housework and I don't like to cook"

Her plowing clothes consist of overalls, a sleeveless shirt and a pair of heavy work shoes

After three years in high school, she discontinued her formal education to go to work in a Toledo paper mill. Two men had to be hired to take her place when she left the mill.

She draws the same pay as first rate farm hands when she works on neighboring farms.

This farmerette knows a good piece of horseflesh when she sees it When the valley has a parade she is mounted on the lead horse At county fairs she competes in horse races with men.

She isn't interested in matrimony.

"I'm not going to get married It's all I can do to keep myself without having to support a man," she said.
